Relentless Allied Forces Driving to Cut Off Reds

Top Officers Say Foe Powerless for Months

TOKYO, May 27 (Sunday) (INS).— Relentless United Nations tank-infantry forces plunged northward, Sunday, to cut off an estimated 50,000 to 60,000 Reds frantically fleeing toward North Korea.

Top-ranking American Army Corps staff officers said they believe the Chinese have been hurt so badly by their unsuccessful offensive that they will not be able to mount another large-scale action "for at least three months."

Armored spearheads from the central front charged northeastward on the road from Hongchon to Kansong on the east coast with little resistance. Artillery and war planes took a terrific toll of the Reds in front of the advancing U.N. spearhead.

One high ranking corps officer said:

"I never saw a military situation change so fast. A week ago we were on the defensive and today they are running madly to get out. They are losing equipment, guns, artillery, supplies and everything.

MAY LISTEN

"I don't see how they could mount another offensive for three months. Maybe they'll listen to reason now and give up this war."

Another top officer, commenting on the advance along the Hongchon-Kansong road said:

"It was an artilleryman's dream. They fired away and then raised their sights a little and kept on firing for effect. Then they tilted them a little more and let the Chinese have it again.

"There were Chinese everywhere, they fired and they shot up every shell they could get their hands on."

Meanwhile the onrushing Allied troops had punched across the 38th Parallel in at least four places.

DEEPEST DRIVE

South Koreans on the east coast raced ahead ten miles Saturday and scored the deepest Allied penetration by capturing Yangyang, six miles north of the Parallel on the east coast.

Powerful U.N. columns in the centre moved toward Hwachon, 53 miles northeast of Seoul and nine miles above the Parallel north of Chunchon.

The Red retreat continued unabated as the Communist commanders sought desperately to save their armies.

However, Allied forces were also on the alert for a possible counterattack by two Chinese army corps, totaling possibly 68,000 men, who were held out of the Red offensive last week. This force was reported on the central front just north of the Parallel.

Tots Die In Fire

Flames Destroy Two Dwellings

VANCOUVER, May 26 (CP).—Two children died late tonight in a fire which razed two dwellings and damaged two more in a tenement district here bordering False Creek.

The victims were Frank McClarey, 2½, and his 18-months-old sister, Linda.

A baby-sitter, reported to be with the children was found later several blocks away. Neighbors said she fled screaming down the street when the fire broke out.

FATHER IN ARMY

The children lived with their parents in a shack behind a rooming house. The father is Sgt. Charles McClarey of the Canadian army, stationed in Vancouver.

The parents arrived on the scene about half an hour after the fire broke out. They were taken to hospital suffering from shock.

Eyewitnesses said the oil-heated shack seemed to explode in a burst of flame.

ATTEMPTED RESCUE

The fire then attacked the rooming house, forcing 25 persons, including 13 children, into the street.

Joe Gillnett, 72, said he had tried to rescue the children but the shack was a mass of flames.

The flames also spread to two other adjoining rooming houses. Firemen managed to get the flames under control at that point.

Clay Slide Kills Girl

Red-haired Barbara Huntingdon, 12, inset, of Toronto suburban West Hill, was killed May 24 when she was trapped under tons of clay which crashed down on the beach below Scarboro Bluffs. The girl climbed down to the beach from the top of the bluffs while on a holiday picnic. The cave-in was caused by erosion by Lake Ontario waters.—(C.P. Photo).

Released Prisoners Start Home

EAST CENTRAL FRONT, Korea, May 27 (Sunday)—(INS)—The trip home started Sunday for 16 gaunt but cheerful Marines released four days ago by Chinese Communists who held them prisoner in North Korea for nearly six months.

"We all wanted to go to church this morning as a group," said one of the Marines, "but we could not do it because we hadn't finished our interrogation.

"Anyway, we asked the chaplain to say special prayers of thanks for us as well as prayers for those the Chinese haven't released."

Then he added:

"Nineteen Christians came back in our group, which is more Christians than our group had to begin with."

One of the prisoners, a soldier, was turned over to army officials, two other Marines are in hospital, leaving 16 Marines in the home-bound group.

One, who was a prisoner of the Japanese after his capture on Wake Island, said there was no comparison in treatment. He explained: "When the Chinese had food they shared it with us.

"When they had medical supplies they treated our sick men. We were kept in houses and what shelters they could find."

China Warned Of "Folly"

FLUSHING MEADOW, N.Y., May 26 (INS).—Canadian Foreign Minister Lester B. Pearson declared tonight Red China must be made to understand the "folly" of fighting Russia's war in Korea if the United Nations hopes to negotiate peace with Peiping.

Meanwhile, U.N. supreme commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway reported that there are "continuing indications" that the Communists may unleash an air offen . . . in Korea.

In a broadcast over the U.N. radio network, Pearson refuted the week's crop of peace rumors and alleged Russian feelers. He said flatly that Russia will be guilty of instigating World War III if collective U.N. efforts fail to contain the conflict within Korea.

"NIBBLED AWAY"

If collective action in Korea against the Communist aggression had failed "the strength of free peoples would have been nibbled away piece-meal in accordance with plans of the Politbureau and Cominform," he said.

"The courage displayed by U.N. forces in Korea may be in vain if the conflict there is enlarged and extended, especially if we bring on the very cataclysm which the U.N. action in Korea can help to prevent."

Pearson pinned hopes on a negotiated settlement on U.N. terms in Korea on the enormous casualties inflicted in last week's fighting on the Chinese Communists, but rejected the likelihood of a stalemate.

The 59-year-old comedienne is still in a coma from a stroke suffered Thursday in her Beverly Hills home.

Queen Mother Mary Turns 84, World Honors Grand Old Lady

LONDON, May 26 (CP).—The world paid homage to the grand old lady of the Commonwealth today. Queen Mother Mary turned 84.

The gifts arrived by the truckload at the queen's home at Marlborough House. There were showers of flowers and telegrams, too.

Among the gift donors were her sons, the King and the Duke of Windsor who gave up his throne 15 years ago, and Prince Philip, husband of Princess Elizabeth.

The queen's two great-grandchildren, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, were driven to Marlborough House for a short visit in mid-morning.

KING ILL

The King himself was unable to pay his usual birthday call. He is ill with influenza at Buckingham Palace. His doctors reported today that he is better.

DOWAGER QUEEN MARY

However, the Queen Mother was guest of honor at the traditional family birthday party with other members of the royal family at the palace.

In the afternoon, Queen Mary performed another of the public duties to which she still rigorously attends.

She drove from the palace to Hyde Park to see Princess Elizabeth deputize for the King in presenting the King's colors to the R.A.F.

The Queen Mother was as erect, alert and as queenly as she was 30 years ago. The newspapers were full of pictures of her, dressed in the style to which she has adhered for decades.

No matter what fashion decrees, her hats sit perfectly straight on her white hair, her narrow coats with fur collars never change their silhouette and her strapped style shoes haven't been seen on another woman for a generation.

Gasoline Rationing Seen If Allies Lose Iran's Oil

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP)—If the allies lose Iran's oil, United States officials foresee gasoline rationing in Britain and France and possibly a general shortage of petroleum products in Europe, India and Australia.

These views were outlined amid a continuing oil crisis in Iran. The Iranian government has completed legislation to take over its big oil fields now leased to the British-owned Anglo-Iranian oil company.

The dispute between Britain and Iran over the oil has stirred grave concern that the allies could lose the oil, or that war could develop. Most of Iran's oil now goes to Europe.

OUTLINES PROSPECTS

A. P. Frame, acting deputy administrator of the U.S. Petroleum Administration for Defence, outlined prospects if the oil is lost to the West.

Of the 2,000,000 barrels of crude oil produced daily in the Middle East, 700,000 barrels come from Iran. That country exports 200,000 barrels daily in crude form, and refines the remaining 500,000 barrels at the plant at Abadan.

It is this refinery which the Iranian government has taken from its British owners.

Frame said that, assuming the difficulty is confined to Iran, the loss of Iran's 200,000-barrels-a-day crude oil exports would not be too serious.

"But the loss of Abadan's refined products—that's something else again."

Flames Sweep Ontario

By The Canadian Press

Dry weather and lightning storms have unleashed a plague of roaring forest fires in Northern Ontario's bush country.

A bush fire within the city limits of Port Arthur cut a mile-long swath through a 500-acre woodlot near the Ontario Mental Hospital. After a ten-hour battle, firemen had it under control.

Saturday, 80 miles northwest of Sudbury, the largest fire of the year raged out of control. Flames were eating out an area of 20,000 acres in the Gogama district.

Between 200 and 300 men were flown into the area from Sudbury to aid those already fighting the fire.

Five other serious fires were reported Saturday and the Ontario Lands Department banned all travel in the Timiskaming and Cochrane areas.

A ban on travel in the North Bay district, where forests are tinder-dry, was expected.

Thunderstorms forecast for the district during the week-end were expected to help curb the fires, but the department said the storms would do more harm than good if accompanied by lightning.

Patricias Rest After Advance

By BILL ROSS

WEST CENTRAL FRONT, KOREA, May 27 (CP) — The Princess Patricias rest behind the lines today after a five-mile dash during the allied advance sweeping the Communist forces out of South Korea.

The tightest part of the whole move was the mines left behind by the fleeing enemy. The mines are of the treacherous delayed-action type which detonate after a predetermined number of men or vehicles have passed over them.

The latest move carried the Patricias two miles on the left flank of the commonwealth brigade to a little village in a valley in the middle of nowhere. That's where they're resting now.

Hope to Cut Red Hold In Municipal Election

ROME, May 26 (INS).—Italian anti-Communist party leaders hope they can cut heavily into present Communist positions in tomorrow's municipal elections—the first test of strength for three years.

At stake tomorrow and June 10 in Northern Italy, the so-called "Red Belt," and in next fall's voting in the south, are some 4,000 communes, or cities and towns.

"Our big problem," said Giorgio Tupini, secretary of Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Democratic Christian Party, "is to get people to the polls.

"If we succeed, then we should get a minimum of 600 communes from the Communists tomorrow and June 10, and another 400 in the fall elections."

1948 DEFEAT

In the historic general election in April, 1948, the Communists were defeated heavily and that campaign turned the die of Communist electoral successes in Europe, but many Communist mayors and combines still were left in power.

Palmiro Togliatti's Communist Party has been campaigning in an effort to win over the so-called "neutralist vote" in a move to defeat Italy's participation in Western world collective security schemes.

Believes Russia Worried By Red Losses in Korea

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP)—The army's chief of staff, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, voiced belief today that Russia "is beginning to get concerned" about increasingly heavy Chinese Communist casualties in Korea.

Collins said also that a peace settlement "is always possible" on the basis of the 38th parallel—the north-south Korean boundry just re-crossed by United Nations forces in their great counter-offensive.

Winding up two days of testimony to Senate committees investigating Gen. Douglas MacArthur's removal, Collins refused to budge from his statement yesterday that MacArthur "violated a policy" by sending American troops close to the Manchurian border last fall.

CENSORSHIP

The army chief disclosed that he has asked a "slight increase" in the size of the army, which would bring total manpower above the present goal of 3,462,000.

Collins gave the Senators, too, his own estimate of Russia's fighting strength. Military censorship promptly was clamped down on it, but the transcript wound up by saying he was satisfied that U.S. forces in Korea and Japan are secure against any predictable attack.

Collins finished testifying a short time before his scheduled takeoff on a flight to Europe, where he plans to confer with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the combined western defence force.

Pact Bid Preview Outlined

WASHINGTON, May 26 (AP).—The Communist high command now has an opportunity to consider whether it is willing to listen to Korean peace terms worked out by the 14 United Nations with troops in Korea.

An outline of the terms was provided publicly for the first time yesterday in the testimony of Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, in the Senate MacArthur hearing.

The United Nations were shown to feel that with the Communist aggressors in Korea being driven back to the 38th Parallel, the Communists could be invited to cease fire and agree to a settlement of outstanding issues by negotiation.

While the peace proposal talk dated back to March or earlier, diplomatic authorities attached considerable importance to its disclosure at this time. In other words, it was said to be not necessarily a dead document but one which even now places before Communist China and the Russians the basis of a possible settlement of the Korean war—a sort of peace feeler from the Allied side.

Careening Bus Overturns Short of Cliff

PORT ANGELES, Wash., May 26, (AP).—A bus loaded with 35 school children careened wildly down a mountain road out of control late today and overturned in a ditch only 25 feet short of a steep cliff dropping away from a curve in the road ahead.

Only ten required hospital treatment for cuts and scratches.

"It was a miracle," the perspiring bus driver, Howard Huffman, said afterward.

Huffman said the brakes failed on the winding mountain road as the party was returning from an all-day outing in Olympic National Park.

"I could see that big cliff up ahead on the next curve, so I wrestled her into the ditch," he said.

First Mass Production

U.S. Plans Building Of Guided Missiles

WASHINGTON, May 26 (INS).—The navy today announced it will soon begin mass-producing a revolutionary guided missile for use against enemy aircraft.

Details of the weapon, including size, speed and range, are a closely-guarded secret, but it is expected to increase greatly the navy's protection against attacking planes.

Launched from shipboard, the guided missiles' chances of striking an approaching plane are much better than present anti-aircraft weapons.

The navy said it is negotiating with Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. to build the missiles at a proposed plant in Pomona, Calif.

The guided missiles which mark the navy's entrance into "a completely new field of weapons" coincidently became the 1,000,000th weapon plan in navy ordnance files.

ALL ABOARD

By G. E. Mortimore

Alcoholics drink because there is something lacking in their daily meals, says Dr. Roger J. Williams, University of Texas biochemist.

Dr. Williams and some food-experiments on a number of alcoholics and found that they bent the elbow because they weren't eating their spinach, or something to that effect.

Each alcoholic was studied for nutritional needs such as calories, vitamins and minerals.

When a diet deficiency is the cause of alcoholism, the drinker may be able to cure himself with a knife and fork, the doctor indicated.

Perhaps the most surprising part of the Williams story was this paragraph, which I quote verbatim:

"Laboratory rats furnished the first surprise. They drank heavily when their food was just at the bare existence stage. They cut down their alcohol when food got better. B vitamins had quick effects in turning most rats away from alcohol."

That's an eye-opener for me. I have always thought of rats as temperate beasts. Rather nervous and intense types, perhaps, with great driving force and an eye for the main chance, but not given to tippling.

But now it transpires that rats are drunkards after all. When their supply of cheese runs out, they adjourn to some low dive under the house and toss back one double whiskey and soda after another.

Early in the morning they stagger away with their paws on one another's shoulders, carolling some rodent drinking song.

* * *

However, Dr. Williams' discovery will probably be of more interest to human beings.

No longer will it be necessary to drag a lush from the bar to a cell or to the alcoholic ward. A policeman will simply impel him to a lunch counter and fill him with boiled carrots or yoghurt.

And if the drunk should somehow blunder into court, the magistrate will shake a finger at him and say, "Tsk, tsk, Elmer, you have been forgetting your vitamins again."

Husbands who stagger home with the milkman will have a sound alibi. They'll say "No use blaming me, dear. You know I'm supposed to have liver and sauerkraut for breakfast every Saturday. You gave me bacon and eggs instead. So what do you expect?"

Food may replace alcohol altogether. But where will the B.C. government get its revenue if that happens?

* * *

Talking about alcohol, another researcher has compiled some doubtful statistics which are supposed to prove that the stuff is lethal.

Three doctors carried out post-mortem examinations of the bodies of 246 people who came to a violent end in Westchester County, New York, during 1949. They found, it is alleged, "that alcohol was the responsible or contributing factor in 68 (27 per cent) of the fatalities."

Of 78 traffic fatalities, 36 of the victims had consumed alcohol; of 78 suicides, 15 of the fatalities were under the influence of alcohol; of 82 non-industrial violent deaths, 20 showed traces of alcohol; of eight homicides, seven of the victims and seven of the murderers were under the influence.

Here we have the latest in a long series of attempts to prove by arithmetic that the Demon Rum means ruin and sudden death for everybody. As usual, it is largely a failure. Scientists engaged in worthy projects like this might do better if they were a little more honest and a little more scientific.

Suppose the researchers went out on the streets, brought home 246 people at random, all alive, and tested them for alcohol. They might well find that 27 per cent, or 37 per cent, of the subjects had taken a drink without even stubbing their toes.

Look at it another way. Those original statistics show that 73 per cent of the citizens who met violent death in Westchester County during 1949 were cold sober.

You might say the figures prove that it is far more dangerous to stay sober. By their own reasoning the researchers are compelled to state that sobriety is the greatest single cause of violent death. In Westchester County, it appears, a sober man is in serious danger.

But seven of eight murderers and seven of eight victims of murder had drunk alcohol. Does that prove that a man who drinks runs a grave risk of committing a murder, or being murdered himself?

The population of Westchester County is 573,558. It would probably be conservative to assume that 200,000 of its people took a drink during 1949.

Then .00035 per cent of Westchester County's drinkers committed murder, and .00035 per cent of them were bumped off. For a drinking man in Westchester County, chances of being directly involved in a murder were one in 14,285.

If you're afraid of murder, drinking in Westchester County is almost as hazardous as eating potatoes.

Experts Convinced Peace in Korea Must Come Through Kremlin's Will

By PIERRE J. HUSS

FLUSHING MEADOW, N.Y., May 26 (INS).—Far-East experts who spent long years in China and are now posted at the United Nations are categorically of the opinion that an honest peace in Korea or elsewhere can never be reached with Mao Tse-Tung.

They say that Mao is too deeply committed to the Kremlin, for one thing, and is a fanatical Communist at heart who will never become a Tito.

An educator of long experience in China, who has met and talked with Mao, describes him as "racially a Chinaman but politically a Moscow Communist of the worst type."

These sources feel an honest peace in Korea can be achieved only after Mao's downfall and his replacement by Communists opposed to Kremlin dictation. They believe that, despite Mao's butchery of any individual or group in his camp even slightly against him, there is sufficient resentment among Chinese patriots in the Communist party to make Mao's downfall a constant possibility.

Chinese Nationalists at the U.N. are of the same opinion. However, they are convinced Mao will fight a see-saw war back and forth across the parallel all this year in the hope of wearing out Allied patience and the will to fight on into "a blind alley."

The Chinese Nationalists emphasize further that Mao will bow to the Kremlin's will no matter how bitter the pill he must swallow. It is for that reason that—in Chinese Nationalist and other Asiatic opinion—the answer to a peaceful settlement in Korea or an indefinite war of attrition lies almost exclusively with the Kremlin.

The Asiatic groups at the U.N. consequently are convinced that a peaceful settlement in Korea must come about on the basis of a global settlement in which Russia and not Peiping plays the leading role on the Communist side. It must be a blueprint for peace which takes into consideration some if not all Kremlin basic premises in Asia, including guarantees which would give Russia a strong position in the Pacific and proportionately weaken the U.S. position.

It is a foregone conclusion that in any genuine peace talks in the far east, Russia would insist on a major share in drafting a Japanese peace treaty.

Second thoughts in a far east settlement, as far as Russia is concerned, would give consideration to Mao's basic demands. This calls for eliminating western influence in China, getting Formosa for Mao and granting him a big power seat in the world body.

Study Fails to Show Peace Moves Made

WASHINGTON, May 27 (AP).—A considerable mystery has been whipped up during the last two weeks over whether Russia has been putting forth peace feelers for a negotiated settlement in Korea.

The answer to the question, according to the best information obtainable here, is "probably not, but maybe." This does little to clear up the mystery.

With the defeat of the latest Red Chinese offensive in Korea, it is certain that every word of possible significance from the Communist side is being carefully examined for hints of an opening for negotiations.

What are the characteristics of a genuine peace feeler?

As applied to the present situation there seem to be chiefly two:

1. Any move which the Russians or Chinese Communists desire to be taken seriously should be made through diplomatic channels.

2. It should indicate some yielding in Communist demands.

Two so-called peace feelers recently have come to the attention of the U.S. Government. On one occasion Soviet representative Jacob Malik, riding away from a U.N. meeting in an automobile with two American delegates, is reported to have suggested that the U.S. let Formosa go to Red China and so set about winding up the Korean war.

Was this just conversation? The State Department, at least, decided it was. Malik himself is understood to have told his automobile companions it was not a peace feeler.

Word also spread that a Swedish business man had received a private tip from Russia that the Soviet Government was interested in bringing about an end to the Korean fighting.

Washington discounted this on the ground that if the Soviets really want to get the ball rolling they can use third-party Government diplomats (Swedish, Swiss, Indian) or some other more direct channel.

Unit's Reunion Draws 3,000

TORONTO, May 26 (CP)—Some 3,000 former and present members of the 48th Highlanders' Regiment held their annual reunion here tonight.

It marked the 60th get-together of the regiment, formed in 1891 by a group of patriotic Scottish Canadians. Present commander is Lt.-Col. M. E. George. Princess Elizabeth is colonel-in-chief of the regiment.

World's First Blind Actuary May Be Approved by College

HANOVER, N.H., May 26 (INS)—Edward L. Glaser, a Dartmouth College senior from Glencoe, Ill., may become the world's first blind actuary.

Glaser already has taken the first of several examinations needed to enter the profession and is awaiting the results.

He was given only the bare minimum concessions necessary to take the exams. He was allowed to have a classmate, David Hall, read the questions to him, do any figuring under Glaser's direction, and write the answers. Extra time was granted because of the procedure involved.

Glaser said he was confident he passed the first two parts of the test, but was a little doubtful about the third which covered subjects he did not have time to study.

Asked how insurance companies, which do the bulk of the hiring of actuaries, felt about hiring a blind one, Glaser said:

"Some of them were pretty discouraging and wouldn't even consider me. Others were a bit hesitant, while a few seemed really interested and encouraged me to go ahead.

"All I need really is a Braille machine and a recorder. I've worked up some developments and techniques of my own that are pretty effective."

French Vote Blunted To Crimp Extremists

EUROPE TODAY

By KINGSBURY SMITH

PARIS, May 26 (INS) — France's political destiny hangs in the balance as the electoral campaign moves into high gear in preparation for national elections June 17.

These elections will be held under a new electoral system which suppresses democracy a little in the hope of preserving a lot of it.

Purpose of this trick system is to curb Communism, hamper the growth of Gaullism, and save the so-called third force Socialist-Liberal group which has composed the recent French governments.

Paradoxically, this group, which considers itself the leading champion of democracy in France, was the one which took measures to prevent the election results from reflecting the full effects of democratic voting.

It is taken for granted that plurality voting would give the Communists and the followers of General Charles de Gaulle the most seats in the National Assembly.

DICTATORSHIP SEEN

The Third Force, or Centre, for the Communists or the Gaullists would lead to dictatorship.

The Third Force group squeezed through parliament an electoral law which will deny some candidates elected by a majority of the people in their constituencies the right to sit in the National Assembly.

This will be achieved through a complicated electoral system which permits alliances between parties in some voting areas and prohibits it in others.

Where alliances prevail, the bloc which receives a majority of the votes will have the right to all the seats in the National Assembly for that area.

ALL SEATS

For example, if the Third Force group should secure a majority in one department (province) of France, they would get all the seats of that department even though a substantial number of them might have been won by Communists or Gaullists.

However, there are some large voting areas, such as Paris and the industrial regions, where the Communists are so solid that they are expected to get the majority vote irrespective of Third Force alliances.

In order to deny the Communists the benefit of the bloc majority in these areas, the new system provides that proportional representation shall prevail.

The French have to vote for a "list" or party, and if the "list" gets a majority in any one district, then all its candidates are returned for that district.

PAKISTAN GROWTH

KARACHI (CP)—Pakistan's two-year delevolpment plan to make the country self-sufficient in "most urgent" manufactured goods and to develop shipping involves a total cost of 450,000,000 rupees, roughly $1,350,000,000. Approximately half the total is for industries, the rest for power, shipping and communications.

Japanese Merchant Shipping Climbs Toward Old Place in World Trade

TOKYO, May 27 (AP)—Japan's merchant marine is just about back on its sea legs.

Japanese vessels now are permitted to enter ports of 47 countries—33 under blanket clearance and 14 for specific purposes.

and tonnage than she had at the end of the world war.

In 1945, she had 452 operable ocean-going vessels, of 747,112 gross tons. On March 31, 1951, she had 762 vessels totaling 1,526,291 gross tons.

Col. Harold E. Miller, head of transportation for the American occupation force, said two services to North America are being arranged which will give Japanese ships access to almost all ports needed for well-rounded operations.

FOUR BIG TASKS

Miller lister four major tasks faced by occupion officials concerned with shipping:

1. "We had to wipe out all elements of subsidy to Japanese shipping . . . and make sure foreign competitors, who didn't want to see new competition with either government subsidies or government operation, would have no basis for complaint.

2. "We had to get ships into classifications to meet international standards for safety at sea.

3. "We had to get Japan back into the tramp service, which we did first with individual clearances, then blanket clearances.

4. "We had to see the resumption of berth term service into the major runs of the world."

The Japanese transportation ministry expects authorization of a regular freighter service to southeast African ports shortly. Runs to the east and west coast of America also are expected soon.

Churches Use Gift Posters

ABERDEEN, Scotland, May 26 (CP)—Walk down university road here and you will be confronted by a large Canadian poster.

Depicting a tiny country church it bids: "Come to church—every life needs an altar and faith for testing times."

The posters were presented to Britain when a British bill-posting company could not get permission to buy them in Canada.

From many parts of Britain, requests for copies are reaching church officials in Aberdeen. Authorities believe the posters will help boost the recent "back to church" movement.

Urges Safety Belts As Car Precaution

PASADENA, Calif., May 26 (AP)—Swerving to avoid a collision, the big sedan careened onto a traffic island, bounced off two sturdy traffic signs and rolled along on two wheels until it righted itself and came to a screaming stop.

Witnesses expressed amazement that the driver had been able to bring the car to a controlled halt.

"I wasn't thrown out because I was strapped in," said William W. Harper. He wasn't hurt. Both fore and aft seats of his sedan are equipped with safety belts, identical with those used in planes.

VITAL FOR CARS

This mishap, which occurred a month ago, only serves to emphasize Harper's argument that it is more important to equip cars than planes with straps.

Harper, 44, has induced the Pasadena police department to try them on several of its cars.

Assistant chief Robert Seares was so impressed that he has equipped his family car with them.

Harper explains that most people are hurt in accidents because they are thrown against some part of the car or thrown completely out. At the moment of a crash, the car stops suddenly, but the occupants "keep on going" until they hit something.

INJURY UNLIKELY

Tests on airplane pilots show that the human body can stand a terrific amount of deceleration. Thus if you're strapped in a car during a smash-up, you are unlikely to be hurt unless—as rarely happens—the inside of the car is squashed.

Harper feels that safety straps are in the same class as safety glass. You hope you won't need it but you never can tell.

Harper himself prefers the same belts as are used in planes, with a fastener which can be released in less than a second. This comes in handy in case the car catches fire.

Big Refinery Being Rushed To Completion

FAWLEY, England, May 27 (AP).—Britain and the United States have joined forces to push to completion Europe's biggest oil refinery six months ahead of schedule.

Representing an investment of £37,500,000 ($110,625,000), the project was started near here only two years ago by Anglo-American Oil Co., now newly-named Esso Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (N.J.).

Next October the refinery will be delivering 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline a day—well ahead of the January, 1952, deadline for the first phase of the project.

Its construction on a 450-acre site is a happy tale of Anglo-American co-operation. Only one per cent of the 1,000 employed on the project are Americans. They are the engineering supervisors.

The new refinery, which will produce 25 per cent of the refined output of the United Kingdom, will sharply reduce Britain's dollar expenditures for oil products.

Capital Quits Hong Kong, Heads for U.S.

HONG KONG, May 26 (INS)—A mass flight of capital from Hong Kong to the United States continued today. Transfers in the past two weeks have totaled about $7,000,000.

Financial observers attributed the trend to a mounting fear among Hong Kong capitalists that Communist China will adopt severe retaliatory measures against the Crown colony following the United Nations' adoption of an embargo on strategic shipments to China.

Other factors motivating Hong Kong capitalists to transfer their holdings to the United States include:

A belief that the world situation is worsening, making Hong Kong's position increasingly tenuous; and Speculation that the pound sterling may depreciate further as a result of a drop in British foreign trade because of tightened restrictions on exports to Red China.

LOS ANGELES, May 26 (AP)—"Cough up," police said, and Thomas R. Fasenmyer Jr. did. He coughed up a diamond.

He had kept the stone in his throat three days, he said yesterday. It was part of $158,100 in gems stolen from the home of Mrs. Malcom McNaughten Monday. Fasenmyer said he swallowed the diamond after his arrest. Police have recovered $110,000 of the missing jewels.

MEQUON, Wis., May 26 (AP)—Come July 14 and Barbara Sommer's mother will also be her mother-in-law. At the same time, Walter Sommer Jr.'s dad will become his father-in-law.

That's because young Walter, 22, an army private, and Barbara, 19, will be married that day. And, of course, because Walter's father and Barbara's mother are man and wife.

It was in 1948 that Walter, Sr., a widower with seven children, married Mrs. Eleanor Heise, a divorcee and the mother of two, both of whom took the new family name.

Canadian Boy Scout Leader Given U.S. Award for Work

CHICAGO, May 26 (CP).—Major-General D. C. Spry, C.B.E., D.S.O., chief executive commissioner of the Canadian Boy Scouts Association, was among eight men today given awards for "distinguished service to boyhood."

They were given the award of the Silver Buffalo by the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, at its 41st annual meeting here.

The others, all Americans, included Ralph J. Bunche, director of the division of trusteeship of the United Nations; James L. Clark, New York explorer; James H. Douglas, Jr., Chicago attorney; Edgar A. Guest, writer and poet of Detroit and Raymond M. Miller, Washington public relations and trade consultant.

Major-Gen. Spry, who at 31 was the youngest major-general in the British Commonwealth forces during the World War, was described as a man who has "practically grown up in scouting."

His citation recalled he gave up an appointment as vice-chief of the general staff of the Canadian army in 1946 to "give executive leadership to the Scout movement in Canada.

"General Spry has been a member of the international committee of the Boy Scout movement since August, 1949, and his interest in youth is world-wide," the citation said.

Medical Class Hears Chevrier

OTTAWA, May 26 (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier told the first graduating class of medical students at Ottawa University today they had a duty to support the law of "peace, work and health."

Addressing the more than 40 graduates at his old alma mater, the minister said they should model their professional lives on the teachings of the great scientist Louis Pasteur.

Sixty years ago Pasteur noted that the law of blood and death, preparing new means of destruction, was in conflict with the law of peace, work and health which sought to deliver mankind from the scourges which beset him.

These words held true today, Mr. Chevrier said.

A fool for a patient

It has been said that he who treats his own illness has a fool for a patient. The wisdom is obvious. What may seem to be an insignificant ailment actually may be a warning of serious illness, especially if symptoms persist or recur. Only a physician has the ability and knowledge required to diagnose and prescribe medical treatment. Seek his attention at the first warning signal. A prolonged and serious illness may be thwarted. If medication is needed, bring your prescription to us.

Arms Won't Do It, Diplomacy Might

RED China is taking her second severe lesson on the Korean front in the repulse with punishing losses to an all-out, headlong attack against the numerically smaller forces of the United Nations. Rather than having hurt the Allied cause, the change of commanders-in-chief in the field seems to have tightened up the United Nations army, which has shown the world its ability to take a sturdy blow and to return it fast. The fact is the Chinese Communist attack has twice bogged down in the height of the effort, leading not only to withdrawal to the north, but also to considerable disorganization of the attacking elements. If nothing else transpires, the Communists have had considerable evidence that the United Nations means business in Korea.

Since the entry of Red China into the fight was based initially on the refusal of the United Nations to recognize the Communist regime at Peiping, shifting by degrees to asserted fear of attack on the Chinese mainland through Formosa and so forth, the persistent rejection of peace mediations probably has had political reasons at its core. Nor are these reasons hard to guess. Red China gave up something at Moscow that the world has not been told, and that may have been a very costly bargain. One thing is certain and that is the longer Chinese Communists waste their strength in opposing the United Nations in Korea, the further will be postponed the day when Peiping can look for any recognition at Lake Success. It will dawn on Mao's followers, if not on Mao, after a while that the Chinese are paying a very high price to pull Russian chestnuts out of the fire.

Generalissimo Mao is probably committed to Moscow up to the hilt; but even a general must have followers and, what is more, successes, if he is to lead. There is another road to Lake Success than by arms. That is through negotiation and the settlement of a just peace. Sooner or later that will occur to many who now follow the Communist role to fruitless and losing battles in Korea.

May 24 Parade No Place for Propaganda

OFFICIALS in charge of the May 24 celebrations used good judgment in excluding a pseudo-pacifist float which the National Federation of Labor Youth tried to enter in the parade. The fact that placards attached to the float were a blatant attempt to undermine Canadian support of the United Nations in Korea is neither here nor there. What is important is that the Victoria Day parade should be kept free from propaganda of any kind whatever. Once let propagandists into the show and the whole meaning of it would soon disappear. May 24 is one day in the year when the people want to get out and enjoy themselves without being pestered by peddlers of the Communist or any other political line.

The U.N. Has All It Can Do Right Now

THE idea of a United Nations military force ready to combat aggression anywhere it occurs, advocated by External Affairs Minister Pearson, presents some interesting angles. There is a U.N. force in being now, the one in action against Red China in Korea. It has drawn the direct support of only 17 of the U.N.'s 53 member states, which at least suggests there would be considerable difficulty in raising another.

Some of the non-participating nations have excused their absence from the Korean theatre on the plea of self-preservation; they cannot afford to weaken their home defences. Few of those who are represented in Korea are likely to be either able or willing to duplicate the effort; some have commitments in other parts of the world. Mr. Pearson's own colleagues in the Federal Cabinet, judging by all precedent, would think twice before recruiting yet a third special force. Canada has its hands full at the moment keeping the Korean brigade at full strength and organizing another for Europe. This alone makes Mr. Pearson's viewpoint rather confusing.

One other factor would arise. In any new U.N. military force Russia would be entitled to membership. That could hamstring it from the start, and certainly would if Soviet behaviour at U.N. meetings is any criterion. The present allied army in Korea is there only because the Soviet state was sulking outside the U.N. tent and lost the intervention case by default. That is not apt to happen again.

In theory a fresh U.N. punitive force to cope with new aggressions sounds attractive, but the odds against its practical adoption seem to put its possibility out of court; at least until the present militant action against Communist aggression has been successfully completed.

FINANCING PENSIONS

Sir,—With reference to old age pensions, the removal of the means test to persons of limited means, which do not admit of a decent living, has been long overdue, but making it to include everyone qualified by age seems to me to be altogether wrong as it will cause a very great drain on the treasury.

In my opinion a much better arrangement would be to have a careful estimate made of the cost of a decent living in all its aspects; for a single person of 21 years, and a married person with wife and four children, say $2,000 and $4,000 respectively. Give the old age pension to all with less incomes and instead of pensions to all with these incomes and over, allow the pension to be deducted from income, which would be sufficient recompense.

WM. A. WEBB,

EMERGENCY CASES

Sir,—The recent article concerning the emergency ward at Royal Jubilee Hospital brings out some startling facts.

Evidently the general public is footing the bill for many minor injuries which should be paid for by the victims themselves. This service now costs the Royal Jubilee alone $50,000 a year. What must be the total bill for the province?

Many of these injuries are reportedly the result of brawls or traffic accidents. Last Saturday night 42 victims were treated; yet, according to the hospital administrator, no bill is rendered for minor treatments unless a patient comes to the hospital of his own accord.

That means the brawler, the reckless driver, gets a free ambulance ride to hospital and free treatment. The responsible well-behaved citizen who suffers a minor injury and arranges his own transportation to hospital for treatment, is promptly billed with the cost.

If that's justice, I'm a flying saucer.

A. F. DAVIES,

Box 2139, R.R. 5, Victoria, B.C.

HIRING OUR FIGHTING

Sir,—Your Nanaimo correspondent, Mr. H. Elgie, has made an excellent suggestion regarding overseas enlistment for our Canadian Army in Europe, that is, any men desiring to emigrate to Canada should serve two or three years in our army over there.

In this way they would prove their reliability and also their motives. After all a citizen's first duty should be to defend his country; how much more so should one defend his adopted country.

A business leader advocates that we bring 8,000 Swedish loggers over. Why not keep our own men at home and recruit the immigrants for the army? At the end of two or three years these same men would become Canadian citizens, and we all know Swedish people are very good citizens.

It does seem absurd for us to send our physically able men to Europe and then to bring in more immigrants to take our men's place. Quite often this has meant our own Canadians, after serving their country well, have to take what jobs are left.

We should all realize that Canada needs more people. The above suggestions would assure that only those of sterling quality would be admitted.

Is this idea too novel for our leaders to grasp?

H. C. TODD,

1402 Andrews Road, R.R. 4, Saanich, B.C.

REDUCING NUMBERS

Sir,—Following your editorial advocating a referendum with a view to reducing our city council, why not suggest with equal justice that we halve the members in our legislature or reduce our members of parliament?

After all, our Provincial and Dominion Governments could function more expeditiously with only half of our elected representatives to question their actions.

Soon we may be bombarded with suggestions to dispense with the city council entirely. Then our city manager could assume the position of Despot No 1, and we could look forward to a period of unequalled streamlined civic efficiency.

In these days of streamlining everything from pop-up toasters to passenger trains, there is one thing that will not stand for streamlining, save at the expense of freedom. It is the practice of democratic government, of which our city council forms a part.

Victoria needs more citizens to lend their brains and assume a measure of civic responsibility, not less.

DENIS H. BESLEY,

536 Simcoe Street, Victoria, B.C.

Editor's Note: A mayor, six aldermen and a city manager was the original suggestion in the city manager plan. It is still a good one.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

WHEN I saw portly Mr. Barrett running vainly back and forth between third base and home plate, my first reaction was that no man with his waistline has any right to be aping the athlete. I kept this opinion to myself, however, partly because my knowledge of baseball is microscopic and partly because my enjoyment of sports needs no public announcement.

It was well that I did, in any case, as I realized later. The Athletic's manager took on a new guise for me as the game wore on. Instead of a misfit reluctant to admit his playing days were over I saw in him a gallant veteran stepping into the breach left by the failure of his younger and more physically fit protegees. And I must acknowledge that there seemed to be no superfluous flesh on his trusty right arm. It gave Victoria perhaps its most fitting victory of the season—on Victoria Day.

All hail, then, to the gentleman my grandstand neighbours exhorted to great deeds as "Kewpie." I hope to see more of his wiles—and of the slim fellow who did the splits twice with great elan as well as lofting a lazy homer at a crucial moment. He definitely caught my eye.

* * *

I confess there were moments when I wasn't thinking about baseball at all, even though this delectable pastime was being demonstrated with some celerity right before my eyes. A grievous admission, I admit, but I offer no excuse—what would be the use—and merely blame it on my upbringing. I was, in truth, thinking of soccer.

More specifically, I was conjuring the scene that will be enacted on June 7 when the Fulham club plays here, and mentally marking out the field, which disappears when baseball holds away and reappears on the far side of the diamond when soccer is the attraction. I was reflecting that if one sits in the best baseball seat it becomes the poorest football seat, too far away from the touchline, and wondering where I should park myself to greatest advantage.

I shall, you see, be present that evening, the weather and other fates being propitious. How could I stay away, any more than could Mr. Barrett refrain from stepping once more onto the mound! Old athletes are like old firehorses, they never cease to tingle when the signal sounds.

* * *

Not that I could hope to emulate the Athletics' chaperon. I fancy I could beat him easily just running around the bases, but nevertheless my legs, I fear, would not stand the strain of a soccer game so well as his arm still carries him through a baseball game. They will itch to do so, however, when Fulham purveys its artistry for our evening's delight.

That is because the mind refuses to accept the relegation of its body to the has-been class, a pretty conceit perhaps but in cold reality a sad state of affairs both mentally and physically. It would be a further conceit were I to dwell unduly on the decade when my legs enabled me to enjoy the privilege of matching strides on Canadian soccer grounds with such illustrious figures as Andy Wilson, Alec Bennett, David Jack, and others of their ilk. I would not expose this vanity at all were it not that I must explain why my thoughts strayed momentarily from the gyrations of Messrs. Marcucci, Jackson, Diercks, et al, last Thursday evening.

You will excuse me, I trust—because, you see, I have no longer any hope of doing what Mr. Barrett is still able to do, waistline and all. I have no waistline—(to speak of, I mean)—but, alas, much more than lack of superfluous adornment of this nature is required in order that one may take the field in a sporting contest. And that is a saddening thought. Why will not the mind grasp such evident truth, and be content?

This Question of Trading With China

By W. N. EWER

LONDON.—Emotional factors, perhaps inevitably, seem to enter into any discussion of this question of an embargo on trade with China. The ordinary man is apt to feel that the Chinese are "the enemy" and that it is "wrong" to trade with the enemy. Then there are others whose judgment is determined by their hope that a peaceful settlement is just round the corner and can be had if only the United Nations refrain from doing anything which might irritate the Chinese.

But emotions are dangerous guides in such matters. This is a complex problem which calls for cool thinking and a cool assessment of the advantages and disadvantages of any line of action. And, first of all, it seems necessary to get it clear what we are thinking about, because words like "embargo" and "blockade" are being loosely and indiscriminately used to describe three quite distinct things.

These are: first, the so-called "selective embargo", the decision not to export to China any of the goods which are now called "strategic materials" and used to be called "contraband of war"; second, the complete embargo, the cessation of exports to China of every sort and kind; thirdly, the blockade, the use of naval forces to prevent the sending by sea to China of goods from any source whatever.

* * *

The first, the selective embargo, is the proposal which was under consideration at Lake Success. The member states of the United Nations agreed to stop the shipment to China of arms, ammunition, implements of war, petroleum and items useful in the production of weapons of war.

Now this is a matter upon which there has been, especially in the United States, great misunderstanding of the attitude of the British Government. A belief has grown up that the United Kingdom is opposed to any such action and that from the United Kingdom and from the British territories in the Far East there has been going into China what General MacArthur has called a "steady flow" of war material and especially of petrol.

The general seems to have been gravely misinformed. For nothing could be farther from the truth. As the President of the Board of Trade reminded the House of Commons the other day, there has been a ban since last October on export to China of "all goods of direct military importance and many others". No petrol, except for a small trickle of contraband, has gone from Hong Kong to China for many months. There was, it is true, some delay in imposing restrictions on exports of rubber from Malaya, but they have been strictly controlled since the beginning of last month. So, Great Britain, far from objecting to a selective embargo, has in fact been practising it for many months past.

Of course, such an embargo cannot be entirely effective unless it is general. It will not greatly affect matters, for example, if China, though unable to get rubber from Malaya, can still get it from somewhere else. But the principle of embargo on strategic materials is, let me repeat, one which the United Kingdom has not only approved but put into operation.

The second proposal, the complete embargo, the stopping of all exports to China, is quite another matter. Its purpose would not be merely to prevent war supplies from reaching the Chinese armies in Korea. It would be to exercise such economic pressure upon China itself as to force the Chinese Government to negotiate for peace. It is in the nature of what used to be called "economic sanctions".

Now the first question that needs to be asked is whether such measures would in fact have the desired effect, and a careful analysis suggests that it would probably have very little effect at all. In the first place, unless accompanied by a naval blockade, it would probably be very ineffective unless it were completely universal—which is extremely unlikely. And in the second place, China is not to any great extent dependent upon foreign imports. Their cessation would be troublesome but not crippling.

And, again, we have to take into consideration whether, in fact, the complete cessation of trade with China, emotionally satisfying though it might be, would not in fact damage the United Nations more than it would damage China.

* * *

There is, for instance, Hong Kong. There seems to be an impression in some quarters that British anxiety about Hong Kong is in some way selfish and imperialistic. But the fact is that Hong Kong is an island with a population of over 2,000,000, mostly Chinese by race, which is economically completely dependent upon its trade with the mainland. To end that trade would be inconvenient for China but disastrous for Hong Kong. It would mean either that these 2,000,000 people would become a heavy liability for the United Nations or that there were be economic collapse, starvation and chaos, which could only result in a Chinese occupation. That is a possibility which no sane statesman can leave out of account.

So, on both these grounds—because a general embargo would almost certainly fail to achieve its purpose and because it might have repercussions disastrous for the United Nations themselves, more damaging to them than China—the considered judgment in Britain is that such policy would be more than unwise.

Thirdly, there is the question of adding to the general embargo a naval blockade intended to make it effective. This has dramatic attractions for a good many people. But, again, the fact is that a naval blockade of the whole Chinese coast—and nothing else would be effective—would be technically an almost impossible operation. It would mean the concentration in Far Eastern waters of practically the whole of the cruiser and destroyer strength of the United States and the British Commonwealth, working thousands of miles from their main bases, which is something naval staffs could hardly consider seriously. It would mean sharp conflict between blockading powers and any members of the United Nations which still wanted to go on trading with China. And it could easily lead to a direct collision with the Soviet Union and to that spreading of the conflict which it is one of our purposes to avoid.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

A FRIEND of mine owns a very beautiful and prolific little trout pond. He has to keep putting trout in, every year or two, to keep abreast of his own fishing and that of his numerous friends. And he goes to a great deal of trouble and expense to guard the pond from poachers.

He had John Alden Knight, the famous American angler and author, up for a fish, and during their talk, he asked Knight what was the best defence against poachers.

"Well," said Knight, "the best thing to do, after all, is, when you are restocking your pond, to put in a few extra for the poachers."

This is probably the most practical statement ever made on the poaching problem. For even if you have a resident guardian living on the property, there are poachers who can trick him. The fact of the matter is, poachers get more kick out of the fact that they are poaching than out of the fish they catch, by a long shot. And the thrill they get out of poaching a hotly guarded preserve is in exact proportion to the risk.

Poaching comes under the same general heading as the sort of smuggling the average honest citizen indulges in when he crosses the border, or returns from abroad. Neither is regarded as theft, or even as cheating. There appears to be one level of moral consciousness in most of us on which we do not feel guilt to the extent we should.

But in many of these small sporting estates, the cost of a trout or a pheasant comes high enough to make poaching real larceny. A trout costing $1 or a pheasant costing $15 is not at all unusual, when cost accounting takes into consideration all the expenses involved in owning and operating a little private paradise.

Victoria in Beard and Crinoline

From Files of The Daily British Colonist for May, 1864

By G. E. MORTIMORE

NEWS that 14 men had been murdered at Bute Inlet by Chilcotin Indians set Victoria on fire with rage.

"The steamer Emily Harris arrived yesterday morning at 8 o'clock from Nanaimo, bringing intelligence of one of the most fearful tragedies which have yet befallen any of Her Majesty's subjects in these possessions.

"The details of this sad affair, which we gathered from the three survivors who arrived on the steamer, must send a thrill through the heart of every person possessed of the ordinary feelings of humanity.

"Petersen and Buckley, the two wounded men, are now in the Royal Hospital . . ."

Peter Petersen, a Dane, told of being awakened in his tent by shots. He was attacked by Indians wielding an axe and a clubbed musket. Then he was shot, wounded and pursued to the stream. He jumped into the fast-running current, was swept far downstream, and escaped.

Philip Buckley, an Irishman, was awakened by a blow on the head with the butt of a musket. As he rushed out, Indians stabbed him with long knives. Left for dead, he crawled later under some brushwood and fainted from loss of blood. Later he crawled to some water, drank, and gained strength to run away.

Edward Mosley, an Englishman, found himself besieged by yelling, shooting, knife-wielding Indians, who brought down the tent on top of him. "I saw knives on each side of me come through the tent, and pierce the bodies of my two companions . . ." Mosley escaped unhurt.

After a nervous two days, the survivors got away in a canoe to Nanaimo.

"The survivors . . . are not aware of the least provocation given to the Indians to commit these deeds of atrocity. They were always treated kindly, and received presents of tobacco and other articles, besides food from the working party.

"There had been no quarrel between them and the white men; although several articles were stolen from the camp . . . the road party had not attempted reprisals."

Waddington said that Tiloot, chief of the tribe, "used to call me his best friend."

A volunteer company was being formed to go up to Bute Inlet in a gunboat to punish the murderers.

Mass of U.S. Students Write I.Q. Draft Studies

NEW YORK, May 26 (AP) — Approximately 175,000 college students today took their "keep-studying-or-start-soldiering" test.

"It was a cinch," said Richard Wald, a 21-year-old Columbia University junior. His view was echoed by many others.

How high a student scores on the test can determine whether he stays in college or gets drafted.

The examination, first of its kind and the largest mass quizzing ever held in the United States, took place at more than 1,000 centres — mostly college classrooms — across the country.

The students had three hours to answer the 150 questions, most of them multiple-choice dealing with such subjects as vocabulary and mathematics.

It was a generally serious and anxious throng that flocked to the testing places in most areas. But many were optimistic as they emerged at the end of the session.

The examination, forerunner of similar mas quizzes to be held for other students June 16, June 30 and July 13, will be used along with college grades by local draft boards as a guide to determine scholastic deferments.

Terror "Running Wild" Nuns From China Say

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26 (AP).—Nine Roman Catholic nuns arrived here today from the interior of China and told a story of "innocent people executed by the dozens every day."

"We saw them killed before our eyes," said Sister Teresa, a China missionary for 18 years.

The Nun said the Communists had turned the playground in the mission town of Yualing (Hunan province) into a public execution centre. At first, the sisters said, the Communists took their victims at night but men and women now are dragged off in daylight to be executed without trial.

"The terror is running wild," Sister Maria Loretta said. "The Communists have gone crazy with blood-lust. They're killing students, shopkeepers, laborers—just anybody for any reason."

The sisters said the Communists had seized the Yualing mission, school and hospital but that the sisters, themselves, had never been molested. However, the nuns said, they were kept waiting months "in fear for our lives" for permission to leave.

The nine sisters of Charity returned on the President Wilson en route to their home convent in New Jersey.

Native Area Of Stalin Gets Message

WASHINGTON, May 25 (INS) —Secretary of State Dean Acheson today "invited" the people of Soviet Premier Stalin's native Georgia "to share" in the American dream of a free world in the first Voice of America broadcast to that Russian district.

Stalin's home territory is near strategic Iran and Turkey.

Acheson's statement, broadcast in the Georgian language by the "Voice," promised regular coverage and added:

WORLD NEWS

"We shall tell you what goes on in the world at large including the aggressive militaristic actions in the name of peace for which the Communist leaders are responsible.

"Their plots and threats are forcing free men to stand firmly against the further spread of despotism."

The state secretary said "Voice" broadcasts will bring the people of Georgia the "truth the Communists fear and try to keep from you."

Activities This Week to Commemorate 75 Years of B.C. High School History

When British Columbia's high school teams meet on Victoria High School's cinder track June 1 and 2 they will be perpetuating a top B.C. athletic event and commemorating the 75th anniversary of the province's first high school.

The high school was established in 1876, a scant 14 years after the incorporation of Victoria. It was a development of the original set-up in a woodsy clearing opposite the present site, named the District Colonial School.

Built originally of rough-hewn logs by the Hudson's Bay Company in 1853, the little school house (it wasn't painted, red or otherwise) was donated to the incipient city when the time came to establish a high school.

That first high school year 68 pupils passed examinations in arithmetic, English grammar, spelling and geography in the District Colonial, but only 20 went on to the high school curriculum started in August, 1876.

FIRST PRINCIPAL

First principal of the exalted and important new high school was Rev. John Nicholson. History says his tenure of office terminated suddenly over a dispute on religious education.

Mr. Nicholson until then pursued his duties in a day when the pioneer school was some 300 yards beyond the limits of populated Victoria (Yates near Camosun Street) and was the subject of Daily Colonist editorials complaining of the "muddy quagmire" students had to walk through.

A brisk blaze in the early 1880's added excitement to the school's history. It destroyed the original log building and classes were held in temporary quarters until another school building was erected in 1882.

This historic structure remains to this day as part of the present-day Central Junior High School accommodation.

Second oldest school building in British Columbia, it yields precedence only to Craigflower School.

THIRD BUILDING

A third high school building was erected in 1902 when the need for more classrooms was felt. This school also stands at the Central Junior High site where Fernwood crosses between Yates and Fort. It was built at a cost of $30,000, and enraged citizens complained in letters to The Colonist about needless extravagances in the building.

Construction of the present high school at Grant and Fernwood was begun in 1911 and the cornerstone laid by Dr. Henry Essen Young, deputy minister of education. (Dr. Young's wife still lives in Victoria and is the senior living ex-teacher of the high school.)

OPENING DELAYED

Classes in the new high school were begun late in 1913, but official opening was delayed until May 2, 1914, when the building was completed. Principal of the school at this time was Dr. S. J. Willis, who became one of British Columbia's best known educators.

Few changes have been made in the high school since its opening in 1914. Among the more prominent, however, were the remodeling of a section of the lower floor into a home economics section in 1938, building of the memorial stadium in 1939, construction of the F. T. Fairey technical unit in 1943, and completion of a cinder sports track earlier this year.

Another addition to the school, a gymnasium with art and music rooms on the second floor, is planned for the near future.

OVERCROWDED

Overcrowding has been a problem at the school for the past 15 years, despite the fact it was intended to be large enough to handle Victoria's high school students for all time. A student body of 450 in 1914 had grown to more than 1,100 in 1936.

Strict regulations concerning attendance of students from other municipalities and use of junior high schools have helped ease the congestion recently, but the problem is still formidable.

Present principal of the high school is H. L. Smith, who has been a member of the school's faculty since 1914. Mr. Smith became vice-principal in 1926 and principal in 1934.

ONLY ONE

His immediate predecessor as principal was Ira Dilworth, who left the high school in 1934 to become an associate professor of English literature at U.B.C. Mr. Dilworth, the only graduate of Victoria High ever to return as principal, is now director of the international service of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Present teachers at the school hesitated when asked to name a few of the better-known graduates; it wasn't a lack of names which stumped them, but rather the question of where to begin.

Oldest living graduate of the school is Herbert Kent, who attended the school when it was first opened in 1876. Mr. Kent, well known in city civic and musical circles, is the father of Aubrey Kent, another graduate of the high school and present Victoria alderman.

LAWS, LETTERS

The late Emily Carr, one of Canada's most famous artists; Byron Johnson, Premier of British Columbia; Bruce Hutchison, well-known writer and editor; Dr. Victoria Chung, medical missionary in China; Sara Spencer, member of the pioneer Victoria business family, all graduated from Victoria High.

Another well-known father and son team of graduates are the late Charles Hayward and his son, Reginald. Both were mayors of Victoria and Reginald was at one time Victoria M.L.A.

The elder Mr. Hayward led the class of 1880 graduating from Victoria High. Provincial archivist Willard Ireland and Dr. Edith E. Lucas, director of the provincial correspondence high school are also graduates. Dr. Lucas was top student of the graduating class of 1920.

Many of these graduates and hundreds of others who have attended the high school are expected to return to the school during the celebrations this week-end, according to principal H. L. Smith.

Athletes from high schools from all parts of British Columbia will provide the opening for the two-day celebrations Friday afternoon, when elimination events of the province-wide track meet are held on the new cinder track. Open house will be observed throughout the afternoon with displays in the home economics, industrial and fine arts department.

At 8.15 p.m. Friday a historical pageant with a cast of several hundred students will be presented on the stage of the auditorium.

Three historical eras: The Victorian period from 1876 to 1901; 1902 until 1930; and the modern era of 1932 to the present will be portrayed on a world-wide theme with representations of famous events of the time.

Walls of the room will be decorated with more than 300 photographs of the school and school events during the past years.

Finals of the British Columbia track meet will be run Saturday afternoon beginning at 1.30 p.m.

From 2.30 to 5 p.m. an anniversary tea will be held on the lawn or in the auditorium.

All alumni and friends of the school are invited to the event.

The celebrations will wind up with presentation of the pageant at the same time Saturday evening.

Sheriff Shoots Prisoner

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., May 26 (INS)—An alleged murderer was shot to death in a Bloomington, Ind., jail cell tonight by a sheriff who foiled the prisoner's attempt to kill his wife to death with a makeshift knife.

Monroe county sheriff Fred Davis reported he fired four bullets into Ethridge Grubb as the former stone worker seized his wife, Helen, and thrust a knife made from a safety razor blade, at her throat. Grubb was killed instantly.

VISIT APPROVED

The sheriff said Mrs. Grubb had been permitted to visit her husband in the cell at the request of Grubb, who had pretended a "reconciliation" with her at the end of a "family reunion" in the jail.

Grubb was scheduled for trial in the Marion county court at Indianapolis, June 25, for the murder of his brother, Warnie, 32, and Homer Neal Shaw, 51. The two men were shot to death by Grubb when they interceded to save Mrs. Grubb from her husband's attempt to kill her then.

The woman suffered minor wounds from the shotgun her husband used to kill the two men.

New Twist For Bread

A new twist to bread—French-fried bread rolls.

Cut the crusts from freshly sliced bread, leaving evenly-shaped oblongs. Roll these tightly and fasten in the centre of each with a toothpick. Wrap in waxed paper or foil to prevent drying.

When ready to serve, fry in deep, hot fat until golden brown all over. Drain on paper towels. Remove toothpicks. The rolls should be crisp on the outside and soft inside. Delicious with sweet butter as an accompaniment to salad.

BROWNING GUNS NOW AVAILABLE

Just a Few of Each Model Listed Below

Browning guns are made by master craftsmen in Liege, Belgium, one of the world's historic arms centres. In Liege apprentices are required to learn as their fathers and forefathers did before them and to specialize in one particular feature of each type of firearm.

A good gun—A BROWNING—becomes a man's lifelong companion.

F. N. MAUSER REPEATING RIFLE

The Mauser Action Repeating Rifle has become recognized over the years as the safest, simplest and most effective Bolt Action repeating gun on the market. Its many unique features make this gun an outstanding favorite with hunters in every big game country in the world. Features include low-bolt and special safety for telescope mounting. Three-leaf rear sight for 100, 200 and 300-yard targets. The sturdy, round 23½-inch barrel is made of special steel. Perfection of chambering rifling and fitting—the work of the world's finest gunsmiths—plus careful sighting assures the greatest accuracy. The stock is made of selected walnut with cheek rest and pistol grip, the forearm and pistol being finely checkered. Can be equipped with sling for target or field shooting.

Magazine capacity, all models—5 cartridges. Weight approximately 7¼ lbs.

MODELS:

2700—Calibre .270
3006—Calibre .30-06 ..... 179.50

Easy Terms Available

BROWNING Over and Under Shotgun

This Browning model is generally accepted as the finest sporting arm of its kind. The position of the two barrels, one over the other, enables an ideal line of sight with a free field of vision similar to that obtained with a single barrel gun. With this advantage of quick sighting, it combines a perfect balance which reduces recoil shock. An impression of lightness is the result of an even distribution of weight and correct balance. Made in 12-gauge, the Browning Over and Under Shotgun is equipped with automatic ejectors and full safety devices. Barrels of special high resistance steel are chambered for 2¾-inch shells. All guns have ventilated ribs, with single selective trigger. Metal parts are handsomely engraved. Stock is of selected walnut with pistol grip.

Specifications: Length of stock, 14½ inches. Drop of heel, approx. 2¼ inches. Drop of comb, 1⅞ inches. Weight, 12 gauge, approx. 7 lbs.; 20 gauge, approx. 6 lbs.

14120—12 Gauge, Full choke and modified 315.00

BROWNING .22 AUTOMATIC RIFLE

The Browning .22 Automatic Rifle is a masterpiece of small gun building. It is precision-built on simple lines and combines the advantages of light weight, strength and accuracy. An excellent choice for the beginner, a "must" for the expert. This rifle is automatic, in that the recoil is used to move the breech block to eject the empty cartridge shell, cock the firing-pin spring, and load a fresh cartridge into the barrel. Consequently after having fired the first shot the weapon is always cocked and ready for firing until the magazine is empty. All moving parts of this Browning Rifle are contained in the receiver, which is completely closed on the top as well as both sides. The bottom only has an opening which is closed by the trigger plate. Front and back sights on the barrel, the back sight can be regulated. Butt and front stock are made of selected walnut.

Specifications: Length of rifle, 36¼ inches. Length of barrel, 19¾ inches. Length of butt stock, 13 inches. Weight of rifle, magazine empty, 4 pounds, 1 ounce.

The .22 calibre automatic rifle is made in two chamber sizes: 1. Firing only .22 short cartridges (11 shots); 2. Firing only .22 long rifle cartridges (8 shots).

MODEL:

BROWNING .22 REPEATING RIFLE

The Browning Repeating Rifle, .22 calibre, stands out as the very latest rifle of its type, and successfully completes the series of Browning models. It will take .22 short, .22 long or .22 long rifle cartridges. The magazine holds respectively 15 short, 12 long or 11 long rifle cartridges. These can be put in the magazine in various lengths, mixed or all one length. The mechanism is strong, simple in design and can be easily cleaned. In dismounting and remounting no tools are required. This rifle is particularly well balanced, light in weight and accurate. It combines perfect security with smooth, efficient operation. The back sight, which is adjustable, and the fore sight are slotted into the barrel. Stock and pump handle are made from fine walnut; the pump handle being deeply ribbed to ensure firm purchase during to and fro action. An ideal gun for target or field shooting.

Specifications: Total length of rifle, 39 inches. Length of barrel, 22 inches. Length of stock from the trigger, 13½ inches. Weight of rifle, magazine empty, 4¾ pounds.

MODEL:

BROWNING AUTOMATIC SHOTGUN

The Browning 5-Shot Automatic, one of the world's most highly esteemed shotguns, is a particular favorite with sportsmen. Construction is simplicity itself—easy to take down, clean and re-assemble. Browning Automatic Shotguns are precision-made. Materials used are controlled with the same care as those intended for military arms. Each gun is subjected to a long series of tests for strength, shot pattern and performance with cartridges of various manufactures. For wing shooting, the magazine may be plugged to conform to Provincial laws respecting the number of shells allowed for automatic shotguns. Stock is selected walnut with the forepart and pistol grip finely checkered. Barrel chambered for 2¾-inch shells.

Specifications: Barrel length, 29½ inches. Length of stock, 14½ inches. Drop at heel, 2⅜ inches. Drop at comb, 1⅝ inches. Weight, 12 gauge, no rib, approx. 7¾ pounds; 16 gauge, no rib, approx. 7½ pounds.

In DENVER yesterday Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was virtually the forgoten man as Democrats put new push behind President Truman's foreign and domestic programs.

* * *

Name the general, now commanding North Atlantic defence forces, has been mentioned as a possible Republican or Democratic nominee for president, the only national committeeman in Denver who would comment on the possibility seemed to feel that Truman would have to put Eisenhower in for the position.

About the only reference to the five-star general's name was praise of his efforts in behalf of Western European defence.

May Tear Down Rooming Houses

VANCOUVER, May 26 (CP)—Ald. Archie Proctor said today that dozens of ancient rooming houses in Vancouver's west end may have to be torn down if the city proceeds with proposed stricter enforcement of lodging house regulations.

He said it will be economically impracticable to convert many of the 50 and 60-year-old dwellings to comply with by-laws.

Mr. Proctor said that proposed new regulations would result in gradual elimination of older rooming houses, freeing valuable property for apartment houses. "We are trying to prevent the west end from becoming a slum," he said.

Gift Brew Cooled in Front-Line Stream

Patricias Greet First Beer From Canada

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, May 26 (CP).—Cooled in a mountain freshet, the liquid was as ambrosia in the 80-degree sun.

Bare-chested Pte. Bob Anthony of Toronto grinned appreciatively, took another look at the tin and pronounced:

"That's the first beer you can say is beer—in the meaning of beer—that we've had since leaving Canada."

Just arrived was the first shipment of Canadian beer to reach the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, dug in in strong defensive positions on the Korean front line.

Ever since the arrival of the 25th Canadian Brigade, which the men knew had sailed with thousands of cases of Ontario beer, the gift of the brewers to the soldiers, the Patricias also had been looking for their share to catch up with them.

FIRST INSTALLMENT

And it did—at least, an initial installment of it.

Lieut. Bill Campbell of Winnipeg, the regimental welfare officer, flew down to the South Korean port at which the force had landed, loaded a truck with enough to keep the Patricias going until the brigade might reach its marshaling area nearer the front, and was on his way north within 24 hours.

First samplers were the front-line troops, and Campbell's truck went up to within a few hundred yards of their positions to be unloaded.

TWO TINS EACH

There, Lieut. Arnold Beauchamp of Hamilton, in charge of the supply point, supervised distribution among company representatives on the basis of two tins a man.

His work done, Beauchamp led the way to the nearby mountain stream.

Half an hour later, appreciation came in a chorus as openers pried into the cooled tins and the aroma of bubbling suds filled the air.

"This," voiced Pte. Roger Laframboise of Ottawa, "reminds you of sitting at home, your wife nearby . . ." The remainder of the nostalgic soliloquy being drowned in a roar of "oh, shut up."

Enthusiastic Pte. Bob Lusty of Toronto, however, started something, when he said: "with two beers a day like this I'd gladly stay here six months longer."

FIRST TASTE

It was the first taste of Canned Canadian beer for all the Patricias and it went down well. The higher-proof Canadian drink is a throw-back to home after the weaker British and Japanese types the battalion has been drinking.

The satisfaction registered on the faces of a dusty, tired patrol to whom Sgt. Al Taplin of Vancouver distributed its share on its return from deep into No Man's Land, would have assured the brewers that the gesture was a happy one.

Lapointe Strikes Back At Criticism by Legion

MONTREAL, May 27 (CP).—Veterans Minister Lapointe contended Saturday that Canada's $2,000,000,000 rehabilitation program for World War veterans has achieved success and he guaranteed the veterans of Korea similarly good treatment.

Simultaneously, he struck back at the Canadian Legion's attack on the proposal to pay an unemployability supplement to war pensioners who can't work and indicated the Government intends to go ahead with the idea. He denied the Legion's contention that the proposal brings a means test into pensions law for the first time.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Legion's Quebec Command, Mr. Lapointe said "the veterans of Korea will receive rehabilitation benefits the same as those which World War veterans received for similar service—the Government intends to see that their re-establishment in civil life is provided for as effectively as it was for veterans of the last war."

Some measures such as unemployment insurance, job-back guarantees and pensions already were in effect. Others would be added as they were proposed by committees now working on them. Already pensions were being paid to men disabled in Korea.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

The latest step provided for training of men from the special force who have been discharged with a pensionable disability. This usually is vocational training.

Mr. Lapointe said the proposed unemployability supplement will be an all-or-nothing payment to pensioners who can't work. It had been argued by the Legion and others that there should be instead an across-the-board increase in basic rates for all pensioners.

This would ignore the fact that 90 per cent of the disabled pensioners are fully employed and thus getting today's high wages.

"Our proposal is to help those pensioners who can't earn. It is a supplementary grant to pensioners with major disabilities who have become unemployable.

NO MEANS TEST

"It begins with the 35-per-cent pensioner if he is single, 45-per-cent pensioner if he is married. To the former the supplement is $20 a month, to the latter $40. It is an all-or-nothing grant. Either you get it or you don't. There is no means test. The only requirement is that the disability is a factor in the unemployability. The qualifying conditons are not income or possessions but phpsical disability and unemployability."

The reason the supplements would begin with 35 or 45 per cent pensioners was because those below those percentages who couldn't work would benefit more by drawing war veterans' allowances.

About 6,000 pensioners would benefit at once but this figure would probably grow to some 34,000 over the years.

The Commons was being asked to vote a total of some $5,000,000 to finance the supplements and other improvements in the pensions law.

Good Weather Needed

Saanich Fruit Growers Expect Fair Berry Crop

Saanich fruit growers can expect a fair crop of strawberries this year despite frost and drought damage, it was learned yesterday.

J. J. Young, secretary of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association said the crop would be of good quality if not as large as that of other years.

He said "favorable weather for the next three weeks" would give a good crop.

PLANTS RECOVER

William Kersey, manager of the Vancouver Island Fruit Growers' Exchange, said the frost-nipped plants had recovered "more than first anticipated."

"We could have used Victoria's May 24 rain in Saanichton," he said. "It would have done the growers a lot more good than it did the city."

Gordon Head farmers say their strawberry crop will be fairly bountiful and the berries will be of "high quality."

Growers say the bulk of the crops will probably reach the market in about three weeks.

Commons Hears Rumors Autumn Session Planned

OTTAWA, May 26 (CP).—The Commons, amid reports that it will be called to a new session in the fall, faces a heavy schedule of business in the coming week.

There are more than a dozen government bills on the order paper, including those giving legal effect to the tax changes announced in Finance Minister Abbott's budget speech April 10.

Some measures are likely to provoke long debate. For instance, there is one bill providing for an increase in the salaries of some judges. The C.C.F. party already has indicated that it will fight the measure on the grounds that judges' salaries should not be increased until old-age pensions are boosted.

RUMORS SPREAD

Rumors of a fall session spread following a Wednesday caucus of Liberal members.

It was reported that because of the amount of work remaining it will not be possible to complete business by June 30, the original prorogation target. Some members expressed belief that the session will either be adjourned or prorogued late in June, with members returning in the fall.

Health Minister Martin added strength to the rumors when he said that legislation providing for an enlarged old-age pensions program will be introduced in Parliament "this year."

He declined to give a direct reply when asked if he meant "this session."

Meantime, Prime Minister St. Laurent took time off from parliamentary duties to visit his home town of Compton, Que. He left Friday.

On Sunday he visited Megantic, Que., as guest of honor at a civic dinner and to unveil a plaque in memory of those who lost their lives in the World War.

Monday he will address the International Congress of Junior Chambers of Commerce in Montreal.

Culbertson on Bridge

(Copyright, 1951, by Ely Culbertson)

Although old-style psychic bids, based on hopeless hands, have been virtually abandoned by good players, a different type of psychic remains in favor, and constitutes quite a threat to the sort of player who sat West in today's deal.

North, dealer.

West probably was not aware of the fact, but he was opposed by a very shrewd and tricky player on his right. The bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠(!)	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 no-trump	Double
Pass	Pass	Redouble	Pass
Pass	Pass

Discussing the deal later, South said that he had of course hoped for a slam when North opened the bidding, but rather than jump in diamonds, South decided to make the fancy response of one spade to find out how North would voluntarily rebid. If he had raised spades South would have become very optimistic, naturally; but when North merely rebid his heart suit, South decided that even a game at diamonds might not be there—that there might be three immediate spade losers. So, partly for that reason, but much more with a different hope in mind, South simply jumped to three no-trump.

It was South's "different hope" which was realized. West, who had been smugly delighted when he heard South's spade bid, and who apparently felt no concern about the missing diamond suit, doubled the three-no-trump bid with great gusto — but nothing like the gusto with which South redoubled!

Naive to the end, West opened the club queen. South won with the ace and rattled off seven diamond tricks, keeping three hearts and two clubs in dummy. West could have saved a little from the wreck by holding a high spade, but when he blanked himself in that suit to guard hearts and clubs, South cashed the spade queen and then West was really "pulverized" — he couldn't keep South from winning all 13 tricks!

Uncle Wiggily Story - - -

By Howard Garis

MYSTERIOUS ESCAPE

Walking slowly and softly on the tips of their paws, Chief the police dog, with Uncle Wiggily and his three friends moved silently closer and closer to the big stump in the bed of flowers.

"Do you think those three bad foxes are still there, Chief?" asked Uncle Wiggily in a whisper.

"I am not sure," replied the police dog. "I cannot see them from where I am. The flowers are too thick and too high."

"Shall I go closer and look?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"If you don't mind, Uncle Wiggily," whispered Chief. "I think I had better go closer and look. I am a detective dog as well as a police dog, and we detectives know how to go very softly when we have surrounded someone we want to catch."

"Yes, Chief," agreed Mr. Longears. "You can do it much better than I could. But I will have my pistol ready, filled with muddy water, and if either of those three bad foxes rush at you, I will squirt my gun at them."

"Thank you, Uncle Wiggily," replied the police dog politely. "Now all of you get ready," he said in a low voice. "As soon as I get near enough to the stump to see the foxes, I will wag my tail. That will be the signal for all of you to rush in and catch them."

"Why do we want to catch the foxes?" mewed Bobbie the bob cat. "I thought we were just going to scare them and drive them out of Uncle Wiggily's woods."

"Perhaps we had better do that," Chief agreed. "After all, what would we do with the three foxes if we caught them? Let's just drive them away."

"That suits me," said Uncle Wiggily. "Go ahead, Chief. If you see the three foxes asleep in the flower bed, just wag your tail. We will then rush up and I will shoot my water pistol."

"How about giving loud shouts as we rush up?" asked Wolfie. "I think some loud shouts, given all together, would make those foxes so afraid that they would run as fast as anything. Shall we all shout, Chief?"

"Yes, that is a good idea," whispered the police dog. "Now watch me. As soon as I see the foxes I will wag my tail. Then all of you shout as loud as you can and rush up all around the stump. Are you all ready?"

"I am," said Uncle Wiggily, looking at his water pistol to make sure it was still loaded with muddy water. "I am ready!"

Foxie, Wolfie and Bobbie said they, also, were ready. Slowly and softly, moving one paw after another, Chief drew closer and closer to the stump. Uncle Wiggily and his three friends watched the police dog's tail. Suddenly it wagged.

"He sees them!" whispered Wolfie.

"Yes," said Foxie, "they are still there."

"Get ready to shout and rush!" softly mewed Bobbie.

Just then, in his excitement, Uncle Wiggily squeezed the rubber ball of his pistol and a stream of muddy water wet Chief's tail.

"Wuff! Wuff!" barked the police dog in surprise. Then he barked again and shouted: "Come on! We'll drive them out of the woods!"

Uncle Wiggily shouted. So did Foxie, Wolfie and Bobbie. They rushed closer to the stump. Again, in his excitement, Uncle Wiggily pressed the rubber ball. This time he shot some muddy water right in his own face.

"Oh, wowzie scowzie!" the rabbit gentleman exclaimed. I didn't mean to do that. Now I have no muddy water left for the bad foxes."

"You will not need any," said Chief.

"Why not?" Uncle Wiggily asked.

"Because," replied the police dog, "the foxes have made a mysterious escape. They aren't here!"

I will tell you more about the mysterious escape tomorrow, if the box of paints will get up in the night and make a picture of the golfish going to sleep in the doghouse.

NEW METHOD COMPLETES $70,000 EXPANSION

Most Modern Laundry Facilities In Canada

New Method Laundries, pioneer local laundry and dry cleaning firm have recently completed their modernization program with the installation of a completely new $70,000 washroom.

The installation is the most modern of its kind in Canada and almost completely eliminates the chances of human error in the washing process.

Commenting on the new installation, Mr. H. R. Stephen, vice-president of New Method Laundries Ltd., told one of our reporters, "With the completion of our new washroom, we have made available to Victorians the most up-to-date laundry service in Canada.

"The machinery just installed is the most modern in the world and guarantees absolute adherence to the formulas we use. By the careful and automatic control of time, temperature and amounts of water and supplies we are able to guarantee that all fabrics handled by us are subject to the minimum loss in tensile strength."

This installation completes a modernization program started in 1946 and is an indication of New Method's faith in the future of Victoria.

Purchased from the Troy Laundry Machinery Co., oldest manufacturer of laundry equipment on the North American continent, the new washers are made of gleaming stainless steel. Apart from the addition of soap, the washers are completely automatic. A robot "brain" built into each washer carefully adds the right amount of water, brings it up to the correct temperature, operates the washer for the exact number of minutes required, opens the outlet valve and drains the washer. A signal light then goes on and advises the operator that the machine is ready for the next operation. Surplus moisture is next removed from the wet work in modern new centrifuges. Instead of the costly handling of separate items between the washer and the centrifuges, the work now travels in stainless steel baskets along monorail conveyors and is loaded into and out of the centrifuges by power hoists.

Thus all handling of the work has been almost completely eliminated. For instance, from the time a sheet goes into the washer until it is parceled up for the customer, only two corners are ever touched by human hands.

The new plant will be viewed by many people later this year when women's groups will be conducted around New Method on Wednesday afternoons. These parties are not continued in the summer months, but since last fall almost 1,000 local women have been around the plant.

New Method gives steady employment in its laundry and dry cleaning divisions to almost 200 Victoria men and women.

Ron Pearson, Esther Bertelsen, Megan Roberts, Shirley Polson, Dave Peddle, Doreen Gorden and Don Norbury are the school's star athletes for 1950-51, according to the results of the sports meet this week.

Ron Pearson, with 37 points out of a possible 40, took the Senior Boys' Cup. Esther Bertelsen and Megan Roberts shared top honors in the senior girls' class with 29 points each out of a possible 32. Shirley Polson, coming first in every event she entered for a perfect 32 points, [illegible] Girls' Cup.

The Intermediate Boys' Cup went to Dave Peddle, who had four firsts and a second for 37 points. Doreen Gorden and Janice Hall were close contestants for the Junior Girls' Cup, but Doreen took the lead with 29 points to Janice's 27 when she outdistanced her in the softball throw. Don Norbury of Grade IX, who definitely has the makings of an outstanding athlete, had a perfect day with five firsts for 40 points.

Four softball teams from Salt Spring Island visited the Pat Bay Annex of North Saanich and dropped all four games to the Saanichites. The girls' scores were 9-2 and 24-5, the boys' scores, 20-2 and 12-4.

Princess Patricia Lodge, No. 238, Daughters of St. George, will hold a supper in the lodge rooms on June 1 at 6.15 p.m. to honor visiting members from Seattle Lodge. Members wishing to attend are asked to call E. Morrish, B 2318; A. Rodger, B 1109; N. Sladden, E 7271, or F. Raines, G 8220.

Extra Holidays For Students At Esquimalt

The students of Esquimalt High School will enjoy a few extra days of vacation, as the school must be vacated by June 17 to enable the workmen to enter the building and tear out the inside. This will make it possible for the new school building to be completed for September.

All examinations will take place on June 13, 14 and 15, with the exception of matriculation exams, which will be written at Victoria High School, starting June 18.

On Monday, the E.H.S. Drama Club members presented an afternoon performance of their play "The Marriage Proposal," starring Gerald Guest, Merle Dean and Henry Pylypa. The play was presented to raise funds for the club and to give the students who did not see the original performance an opportunity to see what talent they have in their midst.

On Friday, May 16, a special assembly was held to present a silver bracelet to "Princess" Shirley Hallmark, who was Esquimalt's representative in the May 24 celebrations. "Princess Shirley, May 24, 1951, E.H.S." was engraved on the bracelet.

According to Shirley Nutter, editor, the Annual is at the proof-reading stage, and the "dummy" will be made up next week. The Annual, which has followed an Indian theme, is dedicated to the community of Esquimalt. It will be on sale near June 12.

Grade X student, Harold Shergold, is the hero of the week, after winning the junior mile in the inter-high track meet Wednesday. He ran the course in 5 minutes, 17 seconds. This is the second consecutive year that an Esquimalt student has won this race. Last year, Bob Hancock, who holds the record, won it in 5 minutes, 6.4 seconds.

The Grade 10 home-ec. class, under the direction of Mrs. H. I. McGuire, will serve a luncheon to members of the teaching staff on Wednesday of next week. The Grade 11 and 12 classes will serve dinner to staff members on Thursday.

Teen Tastes In Clothes

By DEE LAVOIE
Victoria High School

Bathing suits are features of a summertime wardrobe for sun 'n' swim-loving gals, and such a variety of colors and stylings are available, all of them designed to make you look your pretties at beach or lakeside.

Just right for you who want that smooth-tanned look are the trim strapless models that have taken the centre of the style stage. These are often set off with a frill around the top, with shirred panels also a feature. Snap-on straps are usually included for more active swimmers.

BARE MIDRIFF BACK

Two-piece suits went out of the fashion picture last year, but teenagers are voting them in again this season, with many a modish miss declaring her intention of getting a two-piecer. An added advantage of this type is that the top can be worn with shorts or slacks for sun bathing.

Exotic-looking flowers, birds, and fish are splashed across the front of a favorite type of swim-suit that features a white front panel with a contrasting back.

News in beachwear are the demure little one-piece bloomer suits in such unlikely fabrics as gingham, plaid, and waffle pique. With these goes a full-gathered skirt of the same material, and there you are with a smart sun-dress, to wear going to and from the beach.

FAVORED FABRICS

Causing a brief flurry when they appeared last summer were nylon bathing-suits. Although they do dry very quickly, they seem almost too fine to be really water-worthy, so most of the teeners are sticking to the more substantial fabrics, nylon combined with another fabric for instance.

For real glamour, some of the new metallic weaves could be a choice, but they don't seem to have put in an appearance here yet.

Coming in for their share of attention are bath-caps, which, even if they don't keep your hair dry, at least keep it out of your eyes. As well as the more prosaic plain caps that match or contrast with your suit, brightly polka-dotted and flowered ones are appearing.

Don't like carrying a soggy rolled-up bathing-suit and towel? Some of the gals are solving this problem by stitching up a pretty drawstring bag out of a bright-colored towel. Makes a mighty cute hold-all for your beaching equipment, including those pixie-rimmed sunglasses!

Winners Crowned At Central

By BARBARA SANSON
Central Junior High School

The annual sports day was the subject of most discussion last week. After house eliminations, held a few days earlier, the finals of the track and field events were held on the afternoon on May 23. A slight wind made it cool for the spectators, but all were thankful that no rain fell.

J. Hill, president of the Central P.T.A., presented cups to the winners: girls' champion, Beverley Carlow; boys' champion, a tie between Gordon Carlow and Jim Pickup; senior girls' champion, Lois Newell; senior boys', Gordon Carlow, intermediate girls', Bev Carlow; intermediate boys', Jim Pickup; junior girls', Janice Frame, and junior boys' Dick Knott. House I was tops in the finale followed closely by House III, with House II trailing.

The girls of Divisions 8 and 9 were fortunate enough to be selected to visit the Memorial Service at the Parliament Buildings on the morning of May 23. They all objected strenuously to missing school but decided that the service was worth it.

After winning their first four softball games against various High Schools, our team absorbed a loss at the hands of a tough Mount View High team. Whereas pitching had been strong in other games, the regulars, Curran Thornthwaite, and Wooldridge, issued enough walks and hits to give the opposition a big lead which could not be overcome.

Victoria High Preparing 75th Anniversary Events

By JEAN WEBSTER
Victoria High School

With the 75th anniversary celebrations less than a week away, final preparations are being made for this historic event. The utmost co-operation has been received from everyone concerned, and the response to various appeals has been tremendous.

As part of the pageant, authentic costumes from the three 25-year periods will be displayed. These costumes, some of which have been lent by the Provincial Archives, and others by private citizens, will add greatly to the color and authenticity of the celebration.

PERIOD HIGHLIGHTS

Divided into three eras, "Pioneer Days," "The New Century," and "Modern Times," with Dick Diespecker giving the commentary, the pageant will present the dancing and songs of the past 75 years. Some of the highlights will be the songs by the Barber Shop Quartette, selections by the Boys' Glee Club, and a United Nations tableau. In the latter will be students who are either descendants of nationals from the country or who were born in the country depicted.

Another attraction will be dancing from each era, climaxed with a "Study in Levels" by the Modern Dance Team.

Perhaps of more interest to the younger set will be the Provincial track meet, which has drawn entries from all parts of the province. As evidenced by the Inter-School affair, V.H.S. will field a strong team, but tough opposition is expected from some of the mainland schools. During the course of the event, the official opening of the cinder track will take place.

BUILDINGS OPEN

As part of the Saturday activities, the technical buildings and other phases of school training will be open to the public. Industrial arts, home economics and art displays will be featured.

Many outsiders have shown their intentions of returning to their Alma Mater to see the changes and improvements and to compare the methods of today with those of when "I was young."

* * *

Supported by a large and enthusiastic crowd of students, V.H.S. again captured the Roy Jones Memorial Trophy at the annual inter-high school track meet. Going into the meet with a large lead from the field events, V.H.S. was in front all the way. Capturing both the senior and junior aggregate awards, Vic High succeeded in shattering the only record broken during the meet, when Don Burgess, one of the fastest milers in Canada, broke the mile record despite the strong winds which prevented more records from going down.

For the first time, the Greater Victoria's boys' Hi-Y Clubs entered a float in the May 24th Celebrations. Depicting the various phases of Hi-Y activity, the float, which took a third prize, was a credit to all those who donated their time and energy in building it.

With the amalgamation of the three junior groups, the girls' Hi-Y elected officers for the senior club next year. Those elected were Jill Robinson, president; Anne Pomeroy, vice-president, and Shirley Allan, secretary.

Thanks Voiced By Solarium

The Queen Alexandra Solarium board of directors yesterday expressed gratitude to the citizens of Victoria for contributions totaling $1,021.59 collected during May 24 celebrations.

The statement said thanks were due "to the good people of Victoria" for helping the crippled Solarium children.

Much of the money was collected under the direction of Joseph North by means of blankets during the parade itself.

Popular Girl Heads Council At Mt. Douglas

By JOYCE JOHNSON
Mount Douglas High School

Eva Webb was unanimously chosen president at Mount Douglas for next year's student council.

EVA WEBB

Eva takes an active part in all school activities. She is a member of the grass hockey and volleyball teams and participates in inter-house sports. On sports day she was runner-up for the senior girls' cup. Eva has been a member of the council for the past three years, and is very popular with everyone in the school and well-liked for her good sportsmanship. All the students are certain she will make a good president and will do her best for the school.

The winners in the short story and poetry contests have been announced, with Skeena house victorious in both. Ann Coleman—(S)—received first place with her entry, "The Decision." Thelma [illegible]ewart—(D)—and Joyce Johnson—(S)—tied for second place with "Apple Blossom Sunday," and "Victory Both Ways." Third place went to John Gayton's—(S)—entry "The First Flight."

First place in the poetry contest went to Marie Johnson's—(S)—entry, "The Rain," and second place went to John Gayton's—(S)—entry, "The Beginning."

TRACK, FIELD

Mount Douglas' entries in the inter-high track and field events brought 25¼ points to the school. Bob Skillings, Ted Johnstone and Douglas Bonar were the main point-getters for Mount Douglas.

The race for the block awards becomes keener as the year's competitions draw to a close. Up to the present time those scheduled to receive awards are: boys—T. Johnston, R. Skillings, D. Glass, H. Lum, J. Ball, J. Bayton, D. Smith, N. Lidstone, P. Lambrick, A. Thompson and D. Williams. Girls—B. Hearn, M. Laubach, J. Johnson, D. Blake, M. Wong, P. Arwick, P. Pittbrooke, M. Johnson, L. Walker, V. Hearn and K. McKay.

The school has received some new sports equipment which includes jumping poles and sticks, volleyball posts, and softball and hardball bats.

Allen Snowsell Elected Mount View President

By DINAH KERR and MARGARET TREDWELL
Mount View High School

Sports Day or "Supports" Day, depending on the condition you're in, crossed the finish line last week and when the cinders had settled, Mount View was clinging to third place. Congratulations to all participating students.

Allen Snowsell, aided by such terse posters as "All for Al" and "We Want Al, Not His Gal," is the newly-elected Students' Council president. Joint vice-presidents are Pete Winter and Florence Scrimshaw. The elections for both positions were very close and in the presidential election, the second choice on the ballot slip had to be considered.

Following a week of furious campaigning, the candidates gave speeches on Monday at a school assembly. Some of the students were under a bit of a strain as evidenced by one boy who be[illegible] speech.

BLOCK AWARDS

At the same assembly big block awards were given to Verna Asprey, Warren Cunningham, Gaile Gilmour and Bhag Singh. Iona Stewart, Ron Stonier, Thelma Stephenson, Margaret Gunning, Marge Blythe, Lorne Davies, Gordon Davies and Bill Fletcher were given small blocks.

Awards are presented to outstanding citizens of the school on the basis of attitude, athletic and executive ability, and participation in activities.

A successful square dance party for the Mount View and Vic High square dance teams was held at the school May 22. The Vic High team was a top contender for the Festival Cup which Mount View won.

Final problems of the grad dance have been ironed out and arrangements are complete. Catering for the banquet has been taken over by the Grade XI students and home economic classes under the supervision of Mrs. Frazer, home economics teacher. The grads will dance to Hughie Gray's Orchestra and later stop in at the Music Box for further celebrating.

CUP WINNERS

Winners of the Sportsmanship and Leadership Cups will be announced at the banquet.

Warren Cunningham, Lorne Davies, Pat Walker, Allen Snowsell, George Wilmot, Frank Russell, Marlene Whiteley, Joselyn Provan and Jean Provan are candidates for the Sportsmanship Cup and Trig Carlsen, Joselyn Provan, Jean Provan and Marlene Whiteley for the Leadership Cup.

The "Pocketbooks for Korea" drive is now over and Class 8B, the organizers, were proud to announce that a grand total of 550 books had been collected and handed in for shipment to our soldiers overseas.

The next big event at the school will be the drama club presentation of two plays in the school auditorium. This is being sponsored by the Junior Red Cross club at the school; tickets have been sold to raise funds and the school band and girls' choir will also perform.

Majorettes Score Success In First Show

By HELEN KERMODE
S. J. Willis Junior High School

After several weeks of intensive practice the school's Majorette Corps made its first public appearance at the Royal Athletic Park pageant last Wednesday evening. In the afternoon the girls appeared at the first school annual track meet and sports day, where their smart appearance and precision drill caused much enthusiastic comment. The girls also appeared in the May 24 parade.

The sports day and track meet on Wednesday was a great success. The weather was almost ideal, the school band was in good form, there was a very large turnout of students, parents and spectators and competition was very keen. The final house standings were:

House 1, 87 points; house 2, 67 points; house 3, 84 points.

Denny Tupman, president of the students' council, presented the students' cup to the captains of house 1, Reg. Derr and Jagdish Bains.

House III Wins Keating Cup Fourth Time

By FRANK PRESTON and ANNE MILEWSKI
Mount Newton High School

For the fourth successive year House III captured the Keating Cup at Mount Newton's annual sports day. House I was runner-up. This year the H. T. J. Coleman Library Shield went to House I. The Senior Boy's Cup went to Ken Curl and runner-up was Ron Karadimas. The Senior Girl's Trophy went to Valerie Bate, who held a one-point lead over Marilyn Quayle. In junior events, David Hancock carried off the B.C. Electric Cup, and Joanne Gait won the Girl's Cup. Runners-up were Alex Hetherington and Francis Minter. The sports program included 56 events for three age groups. Prizes and awards were presented by Mr. P. E. Thorpe, chairman of the Saanich School Board. Refreshments were sold by a committee chosen by the Students' Council.

Two representatives of the school Junior Red Cross, Lorraine Halliday and Bernice Liddiard, accompanied by Mrs. M. Sampson, went to Royal Jubilee Hospital and met representatives of other schools to tour the children's section of the hospital. The girls presented scrapbooks to the children.

During the last week students wrote special classification tests, after which there was a sigh of relief.

And they called it—

RICHARDSON STREET

BEHIND THE SIGNS WITH Jim Nesbitt

Richardson Street runs through Fairfield from Vancouver Street in the west to St. Charles Street in the east.

It commemorates a noted Scottish-born Canadian explorer—James Richardson, of the Geological Survey of Canada. He was sent to the Pacific Coast by the Ottawa Government in 1872 to make a geological survey of the coal measures of Vancouver Island. He traveled in the sloop Triumph and often anchored in Victoria and Esquimalt harbors.

Richardson was born in Perthshire, Scotland, and came to Canada as a child.

His vessel, the Triumph, of 15 tons, was built at Cowichan Bay in 1872. This little ship took Richardson to Gardiner Inlet when he was assisting the C.P.R. in finding a suitable Pacific Coast railway terminus. The H.B.C. steamer Otter, during this exploration, met the Triumph and towed her to Kitamaat Bay, where the giant new $500,000,000 aluminum industry, with a city of 50,000 people, is to be established in the next few years.

Richardson, for 36 years with the geological survey of Canada, was for a time Cabinet Keeper of the Survey, and died in Malaga, Quebec, in 1923.

Rhonda Fleming, Jane Russell Members of Prayer Group

HEARD IN HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 26.—Somewhere along the line I got an entirely wrong idea of Rhonda Fleming. That's surprising, too, because I interviewed her when she was under contract to David Selznick and she had just made "Spellbound" with Ingrid Bergman.

But I must say I found the Rhonda Fleming of 1951 interesting. Oh, yes, we talked about her romances, but before we went into that she told me that she belongs to the church group that meets at Jane Russell's house or Virginia Mayo's house or some other house once a week.

"We sit around and talk about what we can do to aid the world spiritually," Rhonda told me.

ASTONISHED

I must have looked my astonishment, because Rhonda hastened to explain.

"Oh, I don't mean we are trying to be evangelists or anything of that sort, but we believe that prayer can help the troubled world today. We have Dr. Louis Evans come and talk to us, and of course his daughter-in-law, Colleen Townsend, and her husband are in our little group."

This to me was interesting. I believe people outside of Hollywood will like to read about it and to know that beautiful girls with red hair like Rhonda do not spend all their time sitting in night clubs and fascinating their boy friends.

"John Payne goes with me to the meetings," Rhonda said quietly, "and of course Michael O'Shea is with Virgina Mayo and is very much a part of our group. Porter Hall belongs, and there are a number of others.

"We feel if we can spiritually help not only Hollywood but the whole world we will have had our prayers answered."

QUIET, ASSURED

Rhonda is really one of the prettiest girls I have ever laid my eyes on, with her natural auburn hair, the creamy complexion that goes with it and her green-blue eyes. She has a quietness and assurance that has developed to a surprising extent since I interviewed her about five years ago.

She was under contract to David Selznick for seven years, then came the chance to play opposite Bing Crosby in "Connecticut Yankee."

"Of course," laughs Rhonda, "Bob Hope was right there and asked me to play in 'The Great Lover' with him."

"Now what about your plans for marriage?" I asked.

WANTS TO MARRY

"Oh, I want to marry," she said. "You know I was married for many years to Tom Lane, the interior decorator, and we have a child. But we were very young when we were married and it didn't work out. This time I want my marriage to stick."

"What about John Payne?" I asked.

"John Payne is one of the finest men I have ever known. But you know there are lots of things to be considered. John and I understand each other.

"John often takes his three children, Gloria De Haven's two and Julie, his child by his first marriage, and we go to the beach with them. But, if you mean have I any plans to marry him the answer is no.

"John and I have been in a number of pictures together for Pine and Thomas, and I want to tell you right now not to think for a minute that Pine and Thomas, for whom we made such pictures as 'The Last Outpost,' 'Eagle and the Hawk,' 'Crosswinds' and 'Hong Kong,' just cheap quick films.

REALLY GOOD PICTURES

"It's true that the two Bills started at Paramount making quickies, but now they have had their budget expanded and are making really good pictures. I don't think I have ever been happier in my life than I have with them.

"You know," Rhonda laughed, "make a picture for Pine and Thomas and see the world—if you'll pardon an old cliche. They do most of their shooting on location. We have been in Florida, Arizona and other places."

Then, out of the blue, she said, "My mother feels she is related to you."

"Related to me? How?" I asked her.

EXCITED

"Well, many years ago Hearst International made some shorts on fashions using top models. My mother was chosen as one of the beauties. Her name is Olivia Louis, and, as you know she's appearing with me in 'Hong Kong' and she's like a kid, she's so excited about it."

We sat for a long time in front of the fire while Rhonda told me make cheap quick films.

Rita Hayworth does on the screen—to dance, to sing, and have good parts.

Well, who knows? She has the looks, and now Rhonda is getting the experience as an actress.

German Arms Held Menace

LONDON, May 26 (CP).—Lord Strabolgi, a Labor peer generally regarded as on the left of the party, contends that the rearmament of Germany would make another world war inevitable.

Speaking at a meeting called by the Emergency Jewish Committee to protest against proposals to rearm Germany, Lord Strabolgi said there were two clearly-discernible trends in German opinion.

The first was pacifist and opposed to participation in any future war. The second favored remilitarization on equal terms and with full sovereign rights.

In the event of an East-West clash, the West could offer to Germany only the Saar, but the Russians could offer the great eastern provinces of the old empire, Lord Strabolgi said. This would mean a new partition of Poland.

For this reason he believed remilitarization made another world war inevitable.

WOULD BAR YOUTHS

LONDON (CP).—Sir Harold Morris, commissioner at the Old Bailey courts, has had so many cases of youths under 18 charged with drinking in public houses that he has suggested police raid some of the places, "close the doors and take names of all those under age."

Voice of America Head Forecasts Russian Political, Social Upheaval

NEW YORK, May 26 (INS)—The head of the Voice of America said tonight he believes that a political and social revolution in Russia is "absolutely inevitable."

Speaking at a dinner of the Russian Institute of Columbia University, Foy D. Kohler de-that revolution would take place. He said it may be in five years or in a hundred years.

Kohler said the revolution is certain because of a "basic disharmony between the reactionary nature of the Stalinist dictatorship (at the present time) and the aspirations of the Soviet peoples for a better and freer life."

NOT SUDDEN

He forecast, however, that the forthcoming revolution would not result in a "sudden flowering in the Soviet Union of the real democracy we know, or of our free enterprise system."

Kohler stated that among the causes of the disillusionment of the Russian citizen in his government are movies and books about America, the growth of literacy and the circulation of classical Russian literature "which exalts the dignity of the individual."

He added: "The 'new Soviet society' has rapidly developed into what everyone recognizes to be an old-fashioned class society. As it goes into its second generation, class distinctions become increasingly more pronounced and class conflict increasingly likely."

Kohler warned against a "preventive war" against Russia. The "revenge which would thus be engendered in the Russian peoples . . ." would forfeit all hope of ever securing a peace in the world in which "Russians and Americans might live as brothers," he said.

Cautious Streak Tinges Wall Street Bearishness

A broad streak of caution tinged Wall Street bearishness yesterday as the stock market ended its third declining week.

Bearishness is the product of accumulated developments that Wall Street believes will unsettle the nation's economy — Korean, Iran, taxes, government controls.

Caution comes from the fact that the stock market is in a so-called critical area from which it could move strongly either way, and from signs in several basic industries that business is better than it seems.

A new high for this year was established May 3 with the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at $97.80. Today that average was $90.90, only slightly above the year's low of $89.40.

Today the average edge up a dime, the second consecutive advance.

TORONTO QUIET

Prices edged ahead in extremely quiet trading on the Toronto Stock Market. Changes held to small amounts, and many issues were unchanged.

Volume for the short two-hour session was about 400,000 shares.

Industrials firmed in dull trading. Base metals were up fractions, Western oils rose pennies, and golds barely moved.

MONTREAL SLOW

Trends were narrowly irregular at the close on the Montreal Stock Exchange and Curb Market following a firm opening.

Trading was comparatively slow after opening moderately.

While many issues were unchanged, industrial gains and losses were about mixed in a small fractional price path. There were no significant features.

WINNIPEG FIRM

All prices displayed a firm undertone and generally closed higher in moderately active trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Fair commercial demand was in evidence in oats and barley, including shipper and exporters. Flax and rye moved up in response to gains in the other commodities. Lack of offerings was the main factor in the upturns.

No export loadings were reported.

Class Two wheat and I.W.A. prices advanced one-eighth cent from yesterday.

Victoria Group Will Be Hosts

Pacific Northwest conference of the Society of Residential Appraisers will be held here June 22 and 23, with 150 delegates expected from British Columbia, Washington and Oregon States.

Delegates will discuss government controls on building and their effects, property values and exchange ideas. Speakers are expected from Montreal, Chicago and Winnipeg. Program details will be announced next week.

Host will be the Victoria chapter of the society.

The University of Lima, Peru, was founded by the Spaniards in 1551.

B.C.E. Raises Capitalization

The B.C. Electric Railway Co. has increased its capitalization $20,000,000, to a total of $60,000,000.

J. Lorne McLean, company financial advisor said the new capital will be 200,000 shares at $100 each "to take care of future preferred share cases of the company."

In a report to The Daily Colonist, it was said that there now would be little delay in the current expansion program of the company.

Formal approval of the Public Utilities Commission will be sought before the shares are placed on the market.

GROWING ASSETS

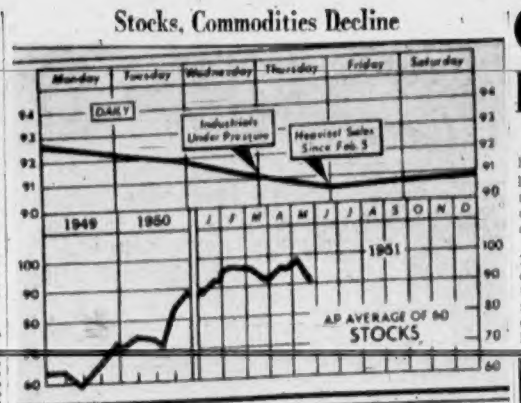
Livestock marketing in Alberta in 1950 had total value of $150,950,200, an increase of $17,000,000 over 1949.

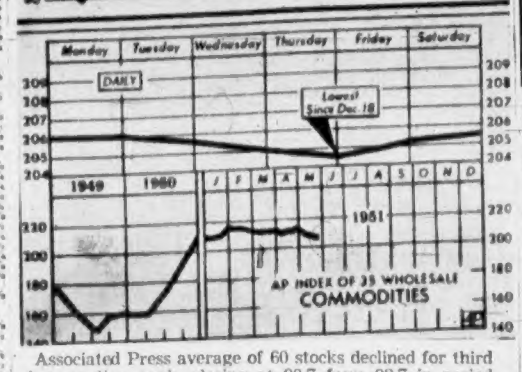
Foreign Exchange

MONTREAL, May 26 (CP) —The American dollar today closed at 6 9-16 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, 1-16 higher than Friday's close. That is, it took $1.06 9-16 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.98⅝, up 3-16.

Stocks, Commodities Decline





Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined for third consecutive week, closing at 90.7 from 92.7 in period preceding. In Canada trading remained slow as investors extended their cautious habits for 14th week. Saturday's volume on Toronto market was lowest in five months. Led by textiles, commodity index sank for fourth consecutive week to 205.3 from 206 a week earlier. At one point during week, index stood at lowest level since December 18.—(A.P. wirephoto.)

Indicate Sales Unhampered

Sales 19 Per Cent Higher Despite Credit Curbs

OTTAWA, May 26 (CP).—Despite restrictions on credit buying imposed late last year, retail sales in the first quarter of 1951 were 19 per cent higher than a year ago, the Bureau of Statistics reports.

During that period, the country's retail trade amounted to $2,154,000,000 compared with $1,806,000,000 in the first quarter of 1950.

The March total was $814,000,000, compared with $686,000,000 in March last year.

AUTO SALES UP

All trades except fuel dealers had increased sales in March compared with a year earlier. Auto sales for the month totalled $162,000,000—the highest monthly total for the trade.

Variety stores recorded a 33 per cent gain, and all four trades in the apparel group had large sales increases.

Appliance and radio dealers' sales were 23 per cent higher. Grocery and combination stores advanced 21 per cent, chain and combination stores had a gain of 33 per cent in sales volume, and meat store sales were up 20 per cent.

Eight Firms May Share Big Contract

VANCOUVER, May 25 (CP).—The largest construction contract ever awarded in British Columbia, the building of smelters and townsite for the Aluminum Company of Canada, is expected to be awarded to a group of eight B.C. firms, it was reported today.

It will total well over $200,000,000 when the whole plant and 50,000 population city are completed at Kitimat, 400 miles north of here on the B.C. coast.

Eight firms have joined together under the name of Kitimat Construction to bid on the job. The group includes Emil Anderson, Bennet and White, B.C. Bridge and Dredging, Camp-Bell-Bennett, Dawson-Wade, Central Construction, Marwell Construction and Dawson and Hall.

The project was too big for one firm to handle and this resulted in the forming of the eight-in-one construction company.

Ottawa Will Aid New North Link

OTTAWA, May 26 (CP).—Well informed sources said today that the Government will put up about $5,000,000 to help the Canadian National Railways build a 125-mile line in Northern Manit

A TRUE STORY

Here's a heart-warming story. I'll try to rattle about some very nice people who live in Seattle. For some strange reason they got all agog. They just HAD to get a British Bull dog.

They looked in their Papers, where they classify in the Seattle Times — and in the P.I. Under "Dogs for Sale" they very soon found just where to go to buy their hound. They leaped in their car, a chartreuse Chevrolet, & merrily roared out the Bothell Highway. All of a sudden, she grabbed his arm, he looked at her in some alarm. "George," she said, "It just penetrates, we CAN'T buy our bulldog in the States." He pulled up to a stop & turned off the key, she patted him gently on the knee. "No, George, we can't. It would be dire, our pup must be born in the British Empire." Her "ever lovin'" gave back her pat, "sure enuff — I never thot of that." He laughed out loud & so did Gloria, so the very next day, they came to Victoria. They beat the chartreuse for better transport, & found themselves a nice Auto Court. They looked in this Paper but nothing was found, so they sailed back home to Puget Sound. Resigned more or less, such was their fate, to buy their dog in Washington State. Then they got a wire, when they got back, "don't buy, it said. I'm on the track." So they waited awhile then more dialogue. "I've found it," it said, "your British Bull Dog." So back they came, thrilled with the news & in the hold was the Chev chartreuse.

They drove off the ship, thru the shed underneath. Gloria smiled as George gritted his teeth. They went back to the Court, their friend they soon found, and it wasn't long for they got their hound. A dear little puppy, love at first sight, one black patch the rest of him white. His lowers were showing, the very wee he sniffed & snorted, had a long pedigree. They named him "Gibraltar" because of the fort, then changed it to "Winston" then "Winnie" for short. He charmed all others at the Auto Court, they loved to watch him snort & cavort. Then they got on the boat & sailed away, twas Thursday last . . . the 24th of May.

Flags were flying, & the swirl of bagpipes & beside our flags, Dominion stars & stripes. And there on the boat on wee Winnie's back, George had draped a small Union Jack. "Winnie" raised his paw in a V salute, he looked determined & resolute. Bands were playing martial refrains and so "Winnie" was gone WITH BLUE IN THE VEINS. He's home full of Love, the ready for battle, this dear little pup. NOW HOME IN SEATTLE.

Tips for Teens

By ELINOR WILLIAMS

EVERYBODY has dating troubles once in a while it seems. Here's a date problem from the mails. Perhaps you agree.

"I like a boy very much who goes to college and I have been out with him a couple of times and from his actions he seems to like me, but I haven't been out with him for about seven months. I don't write to him because he hasn't asked me to. This is his first year at college. What should I do?"

Answer: It seems likely that you would have heard from this boy during seven months if he really wants to see you. Since you like him very much why not plan to see him SO that he's home in a casual friendly way?

Invite him to a dance or a school affair if possible, to show that you'd like to see him more. Perhaps you could plan a double date, picnic, bowling party or some kind of get together to include him without appearing too close. Sim

"I am a girl of 16 and I have a problem that I cannot discuss. It concerns home. It seems I always like a boy from the moment he becomes a little interested in me. I am lonely and far from home. Can you advise on this problem.

Answer: When and once a boy you really like, until like him whether he likes you or not. So don't worry about what others think about it any more. Just go ahead and have fun and have the amusement of relation for others feelings that you want to have for yours.

NO. 140—NINETY-THIRD YEAR | VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, SUNDAY, MAY 27, 1951 | SECOND NEWS SECTION

Workers Needed In Mines

British Columbia mines could employ another 1,100 men or more if they were available according to Dr. John F. Walker deputy minister of mines.

Dr. Walker confirmed reports that the rapidly expanding industry is short at least 1,100 men for efficient operation. About 16,000 men are employed in mines throughout the province.

The shortage may grow as 700 miners are expected to be employed on hydro projects of the Aluminum Company of Canada, B.C. Electric Company and B.C. Power Commission.

COAL MINES

Vancouver Island coal mines are not expected to be affected by the situation, it was reported. About 1,000 men are employed, most in the age groups between 55 and 65 years. Metal mines, especially gold operations, have been hit hard as the younger men turn to higher pay in tunnel work of construction projects.

Head of one of B.C.'s largest gold mines said the turnover in underground workers at his property was "terrific." Fifty men had left since April and 60 had been hired, many from Eastern Canada.

At the same time it was disclosed that iron ore is expected to be developed at Zeballos, on the Island's north coast, for export purposes.

SURFACE ORE

The property, now held by a Toronto holding company, is known to show approximately 800,000 tons of surface ore.

Argonaut Co., at Campbell River, where the potential is held at approximately 50,000 tons a month for about two years, also has export plans.

Government authorities said that no permit is required for export, although it has been suggested the province would like to see shipping allowed only for mineral in excess of 1,000,000 tons, thus causing more development in ore fields of the province.

Export is controlled by Ottawa.

Specialists Gather In Victoria

About 300 leading eye, ear, nose and throat specialists from the U.S. and Canada will register at Victoria's Empress Hotel today for the 3½-day conference of the Pacific Coast Oto-Ophthalmological Society.

Main meeting of the specialists in these lines for the year, the conference will include lectures from experts in the various fields, plus a big program of social activities.

Registration of delegates today will be followed by opening scientific sessions of the conference at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

GUEST OF HONOR

Guest of honor will be Dr. Walter F. Hoffman, Seattle renowned eye specialist.

Chief guest speaker for the eye division of the medical meeting will be Dr. B. Fralick, Ann Arbor, Mich.; for the ear, nose and throat division, Dr. Oscar Hirsch, Boston, Mass.

Dr. Fralick will speak on cataract surgery and Dr. Hirsch on tumors of the pituitary gland.

President of the society is Dr. Augustus B. Dykman, Portland, and secretary-treasurer Dr. Howard P. House, Los Angeles.

Chairman of the Victoria committee is Dr. Norman C. Cook.

Other papers to be read at the conference include "Use of Vitamins in the Treatment of Deafness," "Facial Paralysis," "Anaesthesia," and "Cortisone."

ENDS THURSDAY

Business sessions are scheduled for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The conference ends at noon, Thursday.

Social program for delegates and wives includes a square dance at the Crystal Ballroom at 8:30 p.m., Monday, and dinner dance at the Empress Hotel, Tuesday.

Other features are a reception at Government House Tuesday evening when conference members will meet Lieut.-Gov. Clarence Wallace.

Entertainment for delegates includes golf Monday and attendance at Brentwood Bay fishing derby the same afternoon.

Delegates from California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Arizona and British Columbia are attending.

NEW STORE

PORT ALBERNI — Southern Construction Co. has been awarded the contract for a new Overwaitea Ltd. store in Port Alberni, to be constructed on Third Avenue south.

While construction is being completed the business will occupy the former Hudson's Bay Co. premises.

Double Favorite

Favorite animals of scientific researchers who find their ability to contract human ailments an aid to medical discoveries, Golden Syrian hamsters like Tony are also children's favorites. Bright-eyed, golden-furred Tony is a pet of Wayne Nuttall, seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Nuttall, 973 Cowichan Street.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.

Hamster Playful Pet

Little Golden Rodent Perfect Guinea Pig

By BARNEY McKINLEY

A tiny rodent with "lay-away" pouches in its cheeks is rapidly assuming the role of man's best friend.

The rodent, little larger than Mickey Mouse, is the Golden Syrian hamster and it is now getting top rating for use in the laboratory studies of disease.

It has replaced other animals to a large extent in many scientific research centres.

Victoria youngsters who have hamsters as pets can now look at their furry playmates with new respect.

Because of his ability to contract human ailments the hamster has been aiding in the fight against cancer and other baffling afflictions.

FOND OF BREAD

A playful, active bundle of fur, the hamster lives on a diet of seeds, grains, vegetables and table scraps, local owners say. His fondness for bread has led to the worst pun yet—about the existence of a hamster on rye.

The lay-away pouches swell out like a trumpet player's neck when the hamster is eating. The idea apparently is to get the stuff in the mouth out of sight and worry about actually swallowing it some time later.

The hamster's contribution to medical research lies partly in the fact he has what researchers call an accelerated birth rate. In other words succeeding generations come along so quickly it is possible to study the long-range effects of treatments for various diseases and the progress of ailments.

CATTLE SHOW

PARKSVILLE — The annual Red and White Ayrshire show will be held here June 2, sponsored by the Ayrshire Club and the Mount Arrowsmith Branch, Canadian Legion.

A senior heifer calf donated by Harry Dawson and Son, Nanoose Bay, will be sold by auction.

DAWSON ELECTED

PORT ALBERNI — Frank Dawson was elected president of Local 1692, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, at a meeting in Port Alberni.

Other officers elected were Abe Cocker, vice-president; Ralph Webster, financial secretary and business agent; Axel Jensen, assistant secretary, and A. Bodnar, H. Jay and A. Thornton, trustees.

Dr. T. W. M. Cameron, professor of parasitology at McGill University is one of many scientists who rate the hamster a better guinea pig than the guinea pig.

TRIES OUT DENTIFRICE

Most publicized of the hamster's latest services to science has been in the field of experiment on use of penicillin in dentrifice.

He has "man-like" dental characteristics, but uses a smaller toothbrush.

In fact the one the researchers designed when they started making the hamster clean his teeth every day was a cut-down mascara applicator.

In a controlled test with groups of 25 hamsters—some using plain water, some an ordinary dentifrice and some a penicillin-fortified type—it was proved fewer cavities developed in the penicillin group despite a cavity-producing diet.

EASIER METHOD

It was a lot easier than brushing children's teeth in groups of 25—children that is—and proved the same thing.

According to the report later checks on human use of the penicillin dentifrice confirmed the hamster data.

So far no results are available on how the hamster made out with breathing exercises and deep knee bends.

Forest Fires Doubled This Year

The Forest Service reported yesterday that 253 fires, more than double the number recorded during a similar period last year, has been checked in the province this year.

The cost of fighting the fires was estimated at $15,864, compared with $890 last year.

Fifteen fires were still burning at the week's end despite 18 being extinguished during the week.

Number of fires by districts this year and the estimated cost to date were as follows: Vancouver, 146, $8,046; Prince Rupert, 28, $1,284; Prince George, 27, $3,545; Kamloops, 26, $181, and Nelson, 26, $2,268.

Becomes Camp Pet

Children's Protest Saves Horse's Life

A homeless old horse with the splendid name of Barney has been saved from the "mercy" death scheduled for him this week.

Old Barney, abandoned three years ago when his owner left the Sooke district, has been fending for himself and making heavy weather of it.

Recently he took to visiting pupils at the tiny logging-camp school at Elder Camp near Sooke.

That saved his life. When the youngsters heard old Barney was to face a firing squad because he was too feeble to fend for himself they protested the decision.

Now Barney, believed to be in his late 20's—a venerable age for a horse—has become official pet of the Elder Camp children. S.P.C.A. officials will allow them to contribute to his upkeep and look after him.

Teacher Joyce Bentley said old Barney is now receiving more attention than a Grand National entry.

Whitey Happy, Anyway

A controversial white duck mingling for the past three years with Portage Inlet mallards has finally come up with an identification that she is a true quacker.

Swimming about with whitey recently has been a joint flotilla of nine conventional mallards and one little white fellow just like Mom.

When Whitey first appeared in front of the waterfront home of Cecil and Mrs. James Barr, 567 Portage Road, there was some speculation as to her origin.

Was she an albino or an adventuresome domestic bird seeking to escape the dull but secure farmyard life?

Some say that the little boom proportion proves that Whitey, as she is now known, can say that she could say, have been a domestic breed who mated with a mallard.

DIFFICULT TO TELL

Victoria College biology professor Jeffrey Cunningham said yesterday it was difficult to decide just what the situation was without a knowledge of the duck's ancestry.

If the albino tendency was a recessive characteristic, he said the proportion of albinos in a brood might still be one to three.

Again it is just possible that Portage Inlet has always moored a quiet, demure Lady Love female to the wilder variety they usually associate with.

"DEMAND METERS"

PORT ALBERNI — A B.C. Power Commission representative will be asked by the district Chamber of Commerce to attend the next meeting and outline the operation of "demand meters."

Chamber recently received complaints that the new meter service has set a new rate, increasing the monthly bill to many business houses.

Differs With Pickles; Fire Chief Quits Job

Central Saanich Fire Chief Harry McNichol has resigned because of differences with Reeve Sydney Pickles, it was learned yesterday.

"I've quit because I could no longer put up with the present reeve with regard to fire department matters," Mr. McNichol told the Colonist last night.

Indications are that many members of the volunteer fire department are highly dissatisfied with the way things are being run.

One Central Saanich resident said yesterday he "wouldn't be surprised to see the whole department quit."

SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of the Central Saanich Volunteer Firemen's Association has been called for Monday night to discuss the problem.

President of the association John Looy would not disclose he said to decide whether or what action the group would take. It was "up to the meeting," would elect another fire chief.

Mr. McNichol would not elaborate on the dispute he had had with Reeve Pickles but he indicated it had to do with equipment and general operation of the new department.

First elected chief of the volunteer group, Mr. McNichol helped organize it in January shortly after secession from Saanich.

Councillor Harold Andrew said he was sorry to see Mr. McNichol go.

"He is a hard worker and a good fire chief," he said. "We lost some members of the club a while ago everything to have half stay on."

Councillor Ray Lamont said last night he had received no official word of Mr. McNichol's resignation.

"As far as I'm concerned," he said, "it's only a rumor until I've had an official notification at the council meeting."

If the firemen's association elects a new chief at Monday night's meeting, he will have to be approved by the council.

Air Survey Expert

G. S. Andrews Appointed Head of Mapping Service

The appointment of Gerald S. Andrews as director surveys and mapping service, and surveyor general, was announced yesterday by Lands Minister E. T. Kenney.

Mr. Andrews, a native of Winnipeg, received his elementary education in the Prairies followed by studies at the University of Toronto and post-graudate studies at Oxford, England, and Dresden, Germany, in the fields of air survey and photogrammetry.

He joined the B.C. forest service surveys division in 1936 and was responsible for initiation of systematic air photographs for the service and the Provincial Government generally.

With the armed forces from 1940 to 1945 Mr. Andrews was officer in command of development of improved air survey cameras serving with the rank of colonel. Before the invasion of Normandy beaches Col. Andrews made depth soundings by wave velocities determined from air photographs.

From 1945 to 1946 he was on a special survey mission to the Far East and United States and subsequently resigned the Government service.

Mr. Andrews, as director succeeds Frank O. Morris, whose retirement after 44 years' service with the Provincial Government also was announced by Mr. Kenney.

Surveyor-General

G. S. ANDREWS

Whose appointment as director of surveys and mapping service, and surveyor-general, was announced yesterday by Lands Minister E. T. Kenney. He replaces Frank Morris, who is retiring.

William Head Base Further Indicated

—AROUND TOWN—

Belief that William Head area may become a new naval and air base was strengthened today with confirmation that 3,000 acres of Rocky Point Land is under option to the National Defence Department.

Naval officials said a Victoria real estate firm arranged possible purchase of properties. Approximately 12 families would be affected by the land purchase.

William Head quarantine station area is now held by the National Health and Welfare Department.

Deep water harbor facilities and present buildings of the station are considered ideal for RCN use. The RCAF is believed interested in the Rocky Point property.

DECISION DUE

Labor Relations Board is expected to act this week on application for a strike vote by the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers Union, Local 1163.

The application was made last week after rejection of a conciliation board majority recommendation of a 12½-cent hourly wage increase.

The 200 painters employed by 13 firms seek a 25-cent hourly wage increase. Rates now are $1.45 hourly for brush work and $1.55 for spray work.

HAT AVAILABLE

Crime doesn't pay.

At least it didn't for the thief who stole $? from the till of Terrell's Shoeshiny stand, 739 Fort street early Saturday. He escaped by leaping a fence to break into the stand he lost a brand new hat worth $16.50.

The owner can claim his hat at the city detective office.

• • •

INQUEST SET

An inquest has been set for 10 a.m. Tuesday into the death early Saturday of accident victim T. H. Lowe, 54, of 4312 Columbia Drive.

He died of severe head injuries two hours after his autocycle was in collision with a car driven by Kenneth D. H. Clarke, 202 Edward, on Shelbourne near McRae at midnight Friday.

Inquest will be held at Sands Mortuary.

CAR ROLLS OVER

Damage estimated at $200 resulted Saturday when a car driven by Harry M. Moore, 646 Mckenzie Avenue, rolled on its side at McKenzie and Glanford.

Saanich police said the driver apparently caught his coat sleeve on the door handle and lost control of the vehicle. No one was injured.

• • •

JUVENILES ARRESTED

City police apprehended two juveniles early Saturday morning following a complaint from Mrs. George Cornelius, 2234 Shakespeare, that someone had stolen money from her milk bottles.

The pair, aged 13 and 14, were caught in the 2000 block Victor Street.

Robert Rowan, 619 Belleville, reported to city police that his office had been entered overnight Saturday and $? taken.

HEAD GASHED

Henry Harvey, 922 North Park street, was treated for a gash on the head at St. Joseph's Hospital early Saturday. Police reported he told them he was struck on the head by a frying pan wielded by his wife.

FRESTON, Suffolk, England (CP) — After losing her kittens, a cat here adopted a nursing squirrel.

Cab Case Brings Arrests

Two Soldiers Found Asleep

Two young artillery men were in custody last night after Saanich and city police, with taxi drivers, found them fast asleep on the roadside near the taxi they allegedly had taken over from its driver.

Lodged in city jail was Merton Lewis Conrade, who police said would be charged.

His un-named companion was turned over to Army authorities at Gordon Head Camp.

Bluebird taxi driver William Matheson said he picked up two men on Old Esquimalt Road around 7:30 p.m. and was driving them back to camp.

STICKUP

On Richmond, near Cedar Hill Crossroad, one of the men put his arm around his neck from the back and said, "This is a stick-up," Matheson told police.

Matheson decided not to argue. He stopped his car. When the man's grip loosened, the driver got out and went to phone for help.

Saanich police constables Joseph Armstrong and Robert Coleman with four city police constables and three other cab drivers, located the pair asleep less than an hour later, 100 feet from the car on Finnerty.

The men had been drinking, police said.

Fraud Case Bail Set At $1,000

Bail of $1,000 was set in city police court Saturday following the appearance of Clifford W. Knibbs, 1715 Davie, on a charge of intent to defraud.

Knibbs was alleged to have defrauded Zilah Hall, Shawnigan Lake, of $75.

No plea was entered by Defence Counsel J. Ronald Grant and the case was remanded to Monday.

City Prosecutor Claude Harrison told the court that the complainant claimed "a gross fraud."

Clifford T. Ashton pleaded not guilty to a charge of forging a postal money order valued at $45 and his case was remanded to Monday for hearing.

Steaks Rarer This Year, City Restaurateurs Sigh

By BARNEY McKINLEY

The decline of the steak as the chef's special was sizzling right up at the top of a restaurateur's report yesterday on Victorians dining out habits.

A restaurant proprietor reported sales of steaks were down a nice rare 50 per cent from last year's figures.

"We are becoming a nation of veal cutlet eaters," he observed sadly.

The restaurateur gave prime ribs of beef as top overall favorite with restaurant goers in these meat hungry times. A surprise No.2 on the popularity list was sweetbreads.

PREFER CHICKEN

With the after-the-theatre crowd the preference was for chicken dishes or oysters, according to the same report.

Top favorite with a downtown restaurant clientele were veal cutlets, spareribs, sweet potatoes and hash in that order.

"We sell few steaks nowadays," the manager reported.

The restaurant statistics showed that people who were still fresh enough to order steaks asked for "medium" 60 per cent of the time. Most of the remainder wanted well done with only a small number wanting "rare" steaks.

COST $4.60

On the other side of the burner a few well-heeled folk were ordering more steaks than ever, like the dainty blonde who wanted a double order of New York steak. That amounted to 28 ounces of meat at a cost of $4.60.

Diners who raise the eyelids of normally blase waitresses are customers who ask for hotcakes smothered in mushrooms, smothered in syrup, or salmon smothered with catsup.

Or the couple who wanted bread and butter and whole dill pickles on skewers.

Coffee shop proprietors meanwhile reported the hamburger-on-bun the big item in their sales.

WITH EVERYTHING

They said the great majority of customers wanted their hamburgers with "everything" including raw onions.

Odd birds were the ones that wanted raw hamburger — plus the usual trimmings. More understandable were the clerks, waiting on customers, who turned down the raw onion question.

Hangover from palmier days in most eating houses was the apple pie staple. Popular as ever with most customers, apple pie was reported selling at the traditional price in many eating houses, ten cents a slice.

As to what the customer plays on those music-for-a-nickel machines, the first year in, year out choice is "Life in the Finland Woods."

STARDUST NEXT

Next to that in long range popularity is "Stardust," according to music hostess Jerry Cedar.

On the weekly basis current favorites with the hamburger-and-onion crowd are "Sound-off" from the picture "Battleground," "Jezebel," from the picture of the same name, and "Rose, Rose, I Love You."

FUNERAL HELD

NANAIMO. — Funeral services were held yesterday for William Campel Stevens, 78, who died Thursday at his home in East Wellington.

A native of Ontario, Mr. Stevens settled here four years ago. Surviving are his wife, at home; one son in Ontario, and three daughters.

Miss Ruth Thomson

"Personality of the Week"

By EILEEN LEAROYD

Miss Ruth Thomson is the new director of occupational therapy at the Victoria [illegible]

[illegible] is simple as it sounds when any of the patients want to be diverted Miss Thomson diverts them.

She diverts them by teaching [illegible] for making rug hooking, copper tooling and a number of other crafts.

Miss Thomson's work is not to be confused with occupational therapy. Instruction of occupational therapy regulates the services of a nurse and it is termed as Miss Thomson's work is to be repetitious, diversional and she is not a nurse.

At times Miss Thomson works for the Red Cross in coordination with DVA under their arts and crafts department and does similar work to that done by the Red Cross in other hospitals throughout Canada.

RECRUITING

Ruth Thomson has a busy day in the morning she visits the sick patients. Days interviews take her to schools to interview those who are seeking work at the hobby department and she gives instruction [illegible] required. She also spends a lot of time recruiting [illegible]

I enjoy recruiting because I [illegible] Miss Thomson explains. There is a [illegible] of [illegible] to be [illegible] in some [illegible] at Lake [illegible] and [illegible] and crafts.

Ruling On Oil Sought

U.S. Tells Iran Matter Serious

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, May 26 (AP).—Britain and the billion-dollar Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. asked the International Court of Justice today to force Iran to submit to arbitration in the peace threatening dispute over nationalization of oil.

United States Ambassador F. Grady handed to the Iranian foreign minister in Tehran a note declaring the dispute was of the utmost importance to the "entire free world" and strongly urging a settlement by negotiation.

Dispatches from Tehran told of unconfirmed reports that some of Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's National Bloc at last were willing to sit down with the British for talks.

It remained to be seen, however, how Mossadegh and his fiery followers would react to the latest developments.

TROOPS DISPATCHED

These included not only Britain's appeal to The Hague and the United States' urging of negotiations, but also the announcement Friday that 1,000 British parachute troops are being dispatched to Cyprus in the Eastern Mediterranean—within 1,000 miles of the Abadan refinery in Iran.

The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company asked the president of the International Court of Justice to appoint an arbitrator to settle the dispute.

The application invoked article 22 of the 1933 agreement by which Iran gave the company the right to exploit oil resources in the southern part of the country for 60 years. The article provides that differences shall be settled by arbitration and, in the event of the two parties are unable to agree on a choice of arbitrators, a third or sole arbitrator shall be appointed by the president of the World Court at the request of either party.

A few hours later the British Government gave its full weight to the application with a request that the court declare the Iranian Government is obligated to submit the dispute to arbitration. Failing that, Britain said Iran should be held responsible for an act "contrary to international law."

Queen Chosen

PORTLAND, Ore., May 26 (INS).—Gloria Krieger of Jefferson High School was chosen tonight as queen of the 1951 Rose Festival.

The 17-year-old senior, a singer, was chosen from among eight princesses, one from each public high school attended by girls in the city.

Bomb Site Near St. Paul's Becoming Garden Retreat

LONDON, May 26 (CP)—A rustic garden, costing £40,000 (about $120,000) is being built on a bomb site in the shadows of historic St. Paul's Cathedral as a permanent retreat for city workers. The project represents London corporation's contribution to the Festival of Britain.

The garden will have a magnificent lawn of Cumberland turf, a pond, twin fountains and will contain [illegible] London. The work began last December.

Already in position around the edges of the site are 50 lime trees which will provide a protective screen ten feet high between the garden and the street traffic. Around the lawns will be three lines of flower beds.

Will Honor Adjutant Of Rifle Team

Capt. H. L. Collings, M.B.E., (S.C.), will be honored at a banquet to be held next Wednesday at 429 Lampson Street, to mark his appointment as adjutant to the Canadian Bisley team.

The appointment, awarded to few British Columbians, comes in Capt. Collings' 28th consecutive year as secretary of the B.C. Rifle Association and in his 45th year as an official of that organization.

A member of previous Bisley teams, he will be remembered as a winner of the Silver Cross at Bisley in 1929, when he placed second to Lieut.-Col. R.-M. Blair of Vancouver, winner of the Gold Cross in the grand aggregate.

Among those attending the banquet will be Brigadier W. G. Colquhoun, C.B.E., M.C.; Lieut.-Col. A. C. Perron, E.D., officer commanding the Royal Canadian School of Artillery; Lieut.-Col W. J. Farnsworth, E.D., commanding officer of the 75th (B.C.) H.A.A. Regiment, R.C.A., and Lieut.-Col. W. J. Mosedale, E.D., commanding officer of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

Vote On Executive Has Been Counted

VANCOUVER, May 26 (CP) — Ballots in a referendum vote of Division 101, Street Railwaymen's Union, as to whether the present 13-man executive should be asked to resign, were counted here today.

Union officers declined to release results of the vote for the present.

Should the union membership vote in favor of new executive board elections will be called on July sixth.

The move to oust the present executive followed complaints by union members over running schedules for British Columbia electric transit vehicles. The executive originally approved the revised running sheets, but changed its stand under pressure from the members.

LONDON (CP)—The British Boot Trade Federation has asked shoe repairers to polish boots before giving them back to customers. "It makes the job look so much better," they were reminded.

Wasteful Eating Assailed

PARIS, May 26 (Reuters).—A leading French nutrition expert is waging a campaign against "wasteful eating for purse and stomach."

Professor Hughes Gounelle, president of the French Clinical and Biological Research unit on Nutrition, a Rockefeller foundation set up in 1940, believes that the majority of people, irrespective of income, are still unable to eat sensibly.

WOULD COST LESS

He says that the average Frenchman who is obliged to spend 57 per cent of his earnings—the highest in Western Europe—on food still does not eat to the best advantage for his health. By organizing his meals on a rational, balanced basis, the average Frenchman could eat more healthily for less money, he says.

Gouncle has these comments on:

French kitchens: among the best in the world. They provide varied palatable dishes which also aid digestion. The American kitchen comes after the French. There is no such thing as an English kitchen. Tasteless food is one of the unfortunate results of English cooking. Many valuable salts and minerals are lost through overcooking.

"Makeshift" meats: whale, goat, reindeed and beaver may not suit everyone's taste but they have as much nutritive value as pork, beef or mutton.

Cafeterias, particularly the kind in the United States: "The nutritive value of the meal is wastefully offset by the atmosphere of noise, haste and nervous tension in these rapid self-service restaurants."

CAUSE OF RICKETS

Sugar: Sugar is one of the greatest enemies of healthy nourishment. In 1823, the average American consumed eight pounds of sugar a year; by 1940, it had risen to 101 pounds. Too much sugar, by unbalancing a body-building diet, is a common cause of rickets among children and early tooth decay. Children are given too much candy.

Opposed equally to overeating and eating too little, he frowned upon the American habit of eating a large quantity of meat before the night's rest. But he favors dinner, the American's main meal of the day, eaten in tranquillity after the day's work.

Hungary's Garment Industry Criticized for Shoddy Output

BUDAPEST, May 26 (Reuters).—The Hungarian garment industry is under heavy fire for turning out shoddy, ill-fitting clothes. The main reason for the poor clothing apparently is the workers' attempts to keep up with production quotas by sacrificing quality to quantity.

Istvan Gyorgy, writing in Szabed Nep, central organ of the Hungarian Communist Party, blasted the Sopron garment factory for turning out "zoot suits" for the peasants.

The jackets of these villagers' clothes were in "zoot suitish" lengths which no respectable peasant would wear, he said.

The Shirt Manufacturing Enterprise, on the other hand, made only small-size shirts on the assembly line because with such sizes it could make more shirts and achieve "better production performances."

Commenting upon complaints by workers of faulty and sloppy manufacture of ready-made clothes, Gyorgy declared that exceeding the five-year plan target should not mean merely "to produce more in quantity but also to improve quality."

OF DIFFERET SHADES

He complained about the Kispest Men's Garments Enterprise which allegedly is making "suits of which the trousers are of different shade from that of the jacket and in which the hems of the trousers are uneven."

Recently, he added, 20 men's suits were tested in the No. 3 storeroom of the Men's Clothing Wholesale Enterprise. Each of them was found to have faulty measurements.

The Ladies' Garment Enterprise, he continued, is turning out suits with linings which are too small for the garments.

Other enterprises are making carelessly finished garments, leaving out buttonholes and such.

"Such shortcomings," Gyorgy said, "have resulted in storing up more than 40,000,0000 forints ($22,500,000) worth of unsaleable clothing in the state-owned department stores."

The Szombathely Shoe Industry, he went on, has been manufacturing women's shoes from leather suitable only for sandals, while using good quality leather upper parts for sandals. The mistake, he said, was only discovered after 8,000 pairs of shoes had rolled off the assembly line.

New Champion Glad to Meet Williams Again

NEW YORK, May 26 (INS)—Jimmy Carter—the new light-weight champion of the world—started looking around for someone to fight today after collecting just $3,628 for having won the crown from Ike Williams.

Carter drew down more from the television rights of last night's fight at Madison Square Garden than he did from his share of the record-low $13,260 gate paid by 3,594 fans.

Though his contract with Williams did not stipulate a return bout if Ike lost, Carter's manager Willie Ketchum said his charge would be glad to meet the erstwhile titleholder again.

Fire Destroys Supermarket

REDWOOD CITY, Calif., May 26 (INS).—A fire tonight destroyed a new, unopened Supermarket in Redwood City and caused damage estimated at $500,000.

The fire broke out shortly after employees had locked up after stacking thousands of dollars worth of stock in the new building. Flames gushed through the structure and firemen from Redwood City, together with county firemen and firemen from Menlo Park, battled the blaze for two hours before bringing it under control.

Boxla Practices

Doug Fletcher, president of the Victoria and District Box Lacrosse Association, last night announced the final practices in the juvenile leagues before play opens next week.

Monday, pee wees; Tuesday, bantams; Wednesday, midgets.

All practices will be held at Stevenson Park at 3.30 p.m., and all players are requested to attend.

COMPLAINS OF RISE

PORT ALBERNI—G. H. Bird, 216 Ringsway South, has complained to the city over a hike in tax on the drain frontage on his property.

The tax had been increased this year from ten to 25 cents per foot. Mr. Bird noted that he had not been allowed to pay for the drain in a lump sum when it was installed, at which time the total cost for installation was $1 per foot.

The council decided to discuss the matter in committee.

NEWCASTLE, England (CP).—Skeleton of a bear believed to be anywhere from 5,000 to 7,000 years old was found recently near here. Authorities will make further search for traces of prehistoric man in the area.

Eleven-Year-Old Accomplished As Artist, Mechanic, Athlete

Peter Halley of Montreal looks like any other 11-year-old but he is an accomplished artist, mechanic, skilled wood and metal worker, scholar and athlete to boot.

Peter, who is a California-born Montrealer, had at the age of seven already exhibited oil paintings in Montreal's art gallery. He has since had offers of free instruction from recognized artists "any time he wishes to take art seriously."

His scale working model of the 960-foot freighter, H.M.S. Bonaventure, recently won national recognition and first place in the Westmount Y.M.C.A. hobby show. This is the third consecutive win.

On the eve of this show Peter was thumbing through a magazine when a photograph of two boxers caught his eye. He promptly put the scene on canvas, took it to the show and won a special award. The same morning he drew from memory in school, a sketch of Canada's Parliament Buildings which brought him another award.

Peter gives all the credit for his work to Kenneth Murray, director of Camp Arrowhead, Lake Memphremagog, where he spends his summer holidays.

WORKS HARD

Though he began his hobby only five years ago when a friend gave him a construction set, he has developed his natural talent through a genuine interest and hard work.

But he is unimpressed with his own talent and, except for the fact that he never has any spare time, his day is like that of any other schoolboy of his age.

His future plans include a construction engineering job and he hopes, through scholarship, to attend McGill University.

Mercury High In Southwest

By The Associated Press

A heat wave tightened its grip in the southwest Saturday while rain pelted the U.S. midsection again.

The mercury hit 112 at Yuma, Ariz., Friday and after an overnight dip, was back up beyond the 100 mark again before noon Saturday. Southern California inland sections also had their second day of 100 degree plus weather.

Rain fell throughout the Great Lakes region and the Upper Mississippi Valley and from southeastern Nebraska to Northeastern Wisconsin.

Town Suffers Double Blow

TILBURY, Ont., May 26 (CP) — This Western Ontario centre got more than its share of trouble today—from fire and storm.

A blaze in the northern end of the city burned out a tire shop and damaged an adjoining store.

Less than an hour later, torrential rains and winds of gale force hit the town, toppling trees and snapping power lines and television aerials.

No one was seriously injured in the blow, which died out after five minutes, but the eastern section of the town was without power for more than an hour.

Ancient Title in England Finds Claimants Bashful

LONDON, May 26 (Reuters).—A 600-year-old English title is going a-begging.

The title of Baron Cobham of England was left vacant in February when the 13th holder died in Australia.

There are four co-heirs. Two of them are women because this title, unlike most British peerages, can be inherited by a woman.

[illegible] have titles. They say they don't want any more.

One of them, Lord Strabolgi (a former Labor member of parliament) turned it down without any further reason.

TOO COSTLY

The other, Lord Burgh, said he couldn't afford it. Lord Burgh's father had to claim his own title from the House of Lords because it had lapsed for 300 years.

"Judging by what it cost my father to dig the Burgh title out of abeyance, I could not afford to take on the Cobham title also," Lord Burgh said.

The two sisters of the late Baron Cobham must now decide whether they want the title, if so, which one will take it.

They are Hon. Mrs. Mary Isabel Bazley-White and Hon. Mrs. Muriel Helen Thornely. They have not yet made up their minds.

"COMMONER" POSSIBILITY

If they too decide that they do not want to become Lady Cobham, a "commoner" (a man without a title) may decide to enter the lists and claim it.

He is 28-year-old London television engineer Patrick Alexander, son of the late Lord Cobham and his first wife. He was born in Australia in 1923 when Lord and Lady Cobham were living there as Mr. and Mrs. Alexander—the Cobham's family name.

The Cobham peerage was created in 1312.

Air Mappers Kept Busy By Sunshine

By LAWRIE JOSLIN

"The show must go on," time-honored creed of the stage, has been adapted for use by the air survey division of the Provincial Government's survey mapping service.

G. S. Andrews, newly-appointed director of the Province's surveys and mapping service, explained yesterday that air photography teams are instructed never to miss a "photographic day" in their "shooting season," which extends roughly from June 1 to September 15.

The air photographers know that nothing must keep them on the ground if the weather is fine.

ONLY SUMMER SUITABLE

Air photography cannot be undertaken in cloudy weather. Slanting sun rays of autumn, winter and spring which cast mountain shadows across valleys, make only summer months suitable for air survey work.

Clear, bright days are precious to the air survey division. So precious, in fact, that an extra man is sent out with each five-man crew manning the division's two Anson aircraft so that if a crew member is taken ill, his illness will not keep his plane on the ground.

FIVE-MAN CREW

Crews include two photographers, a navigator, a pilot and a mechanic. They fly a grueling five or six hours a day and, since 1936 when the service started, have trained their expensive and intricate photographic equipment on every corner of the province.

Industrial growth in the province is bringing the air mappers down from the higher altitudes to "shoot," in detail, areas of greatest economic importance where development either is taking place or about to take place.

Detailed lower altitude mapping requires four times as many pictures as high-level general mapping. Because it would prove too costly, the air survey division does not intend to photograph the entire province in this way, as it has done from high levels.

TO FILM OOTSA LAKE

Low-level photography plans for this year include the east coast of Vancouver Island, Ootsa Lake, the first of the lakes to be flooded in the Alcan development in Tweedsmuir Park, and the area from Hazelton northwest to the Yukon and Alaska.

Pictures of the Island will give a bird's-eye view of development which has taken place.

From detailed air maps of Ootsa Lake it will be possible for the Forest Service to calculate timber to be flooded so that its sale can be prearranged.

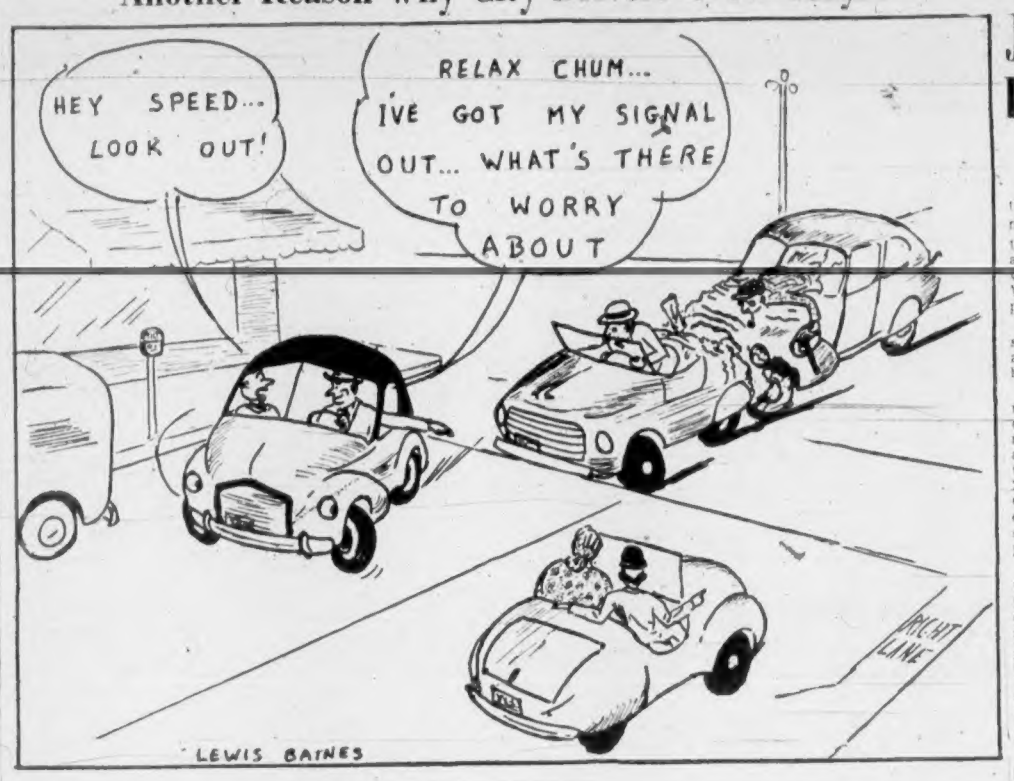
Should a new approach to Alaska be considered in the future, air survey will have on hand a detailed picture of the terrain between Hazelton and the Alaska border.

SURVEY HIGHWAYS

Mr. Andrews stated the air survey division was making detailed surveys of all main highways to assist engineers in planning highway improvements. Public works officials are making more and more use of air survey pictures in planning new roads.

Air survey photographs are public information and are always available to the public, stated Mr. Andrews. Right now the department is supplying hundreds of reprints to universities, schools, municipalities and logging companies.

Another Reason Why City Drivers Grow Grey



Signal, Lane Confusion Not Solely to Blame

Many Victoria Traffic Problems Created By Motorists, Pedestrians Themselves

By RAY BAINES

Public reaction to last week's survey of traffic conditions has uncovered a few more examples of the inadequate control measures.

"What about the bus stop at Quadra and Bay Streets?" an unidentified motorist asked yesterday.

"Tell them about the pedestrians who walk on amber lights and cars and buses pulling out from the curb without looking," a veteran driving instructor urged.

A further check of these and a few other points yesterday showed that authorities who place a different type of traffic light on every corner and confuse motorists with a dozen different kinds of lane channels are not the only ones to blame.

LACK COURTESY

Many of the problems are created directly by motorists themselves who disregard basic principles of common sense and courtesy.

The bus stop at Quadra and Bay, however, is a lulu.

Traveling south on Quadra approaching Bay Street up-hill, we found a bus pulled in to the curb to pick up passengers right at the crest of the hill on the near side of the intersection.

The Bay Street approach from the right, bad enough at the best of times, was completely blocked off from us, and we from the car stopped there at the stop sign.

Because of the slight bend in Quadra at this point, the stopped bus even blocked the view of cars approaching from the other direction on Quadra.

PLENTY OF ROOM

We found there was plenty of room to put the bus stop on the south side of the intersection where it would affect no one.

The point about cars and buses pulling out from the curb is, of course, an old and bothersome complaint.

The law, however, does not help to clarify the matter. It says, in effect, that anyone pulling out from the curb must signal his intention to do so. It also implies that in the event of an accident resulting from this situation, the party pulling out from the curb is entirely at fault.

STILL RESPONSIBLE

This means that a person pulling out from the curb must signal, but the signal does not relieve him of the responsibility. Obviously, from a practical standpoint, one good prolonged look is worth ten signals.

Many people, judging from a few incidents yesterday, think that if their hand is stuck out of the window, nothing can hit them.

There are many who neither look nor signal.

BUSES WORST

City bus drivers are the worst offenders in this matter, we discovered, although they argue that pressure of time makes it impossible to exercise caution every time they pull out from the curb.

It was necessary to make several near-emergency stops in town yesterday, to avoid bouncing off the sides of buses.

In two cases, buses passed us on the left and then cut sharply into a bus stop. Many people apparently accept these things with a "passenger-bus-can-do-no-wrong" attitude.

ANNOYING PRACTICE

Another dangerous and annoying practice, on the part of pedestrians this time, is walking on the amber light on the Douglas Street intersections.

Time after time, after waiting for a green light, we found ourselves forced to stay put for another eight or ten seconds while someone who had stepped off the curb on the amber got across.

A car, caught close to an intersection when the light changes, may cross on an amber light because, authorities reason, it will take the driver only about two seconds to clear the intersection.

Pedestrians, on the other hand, must wait the moment the light goes amber, because it will take them the duration of the amber light and half the duration of the red light to complete their trip across.

During this latter period, they are walking against the through traffic. Even their new pedestrian right-of-way privileges can't protect them here, either legally or actually.

Inconsistent and inadequate traffic control methods, ignorance of the law and disregard of it by both motorists and pedestrians, and plain discourtesy and egotism on the part of both, all add up to a pretty unhappy jumble, we concluded.

Two Classes Compete At Yacht Club

Races of two classes were featured in the Royal Victoria Yacht Club Saturday series yesterday with Eric Dowell in Ariel taking as easy win over five starters in the Lightning class.

Second in the Lightnings was Colin Bakers in Allegro and third, Roy Murdock in Pukeko.

In the Snipe class race, with nine starters, Nigel Scott-Moncreiff was first in Redskin, Timothy Heiberg second in William McCarter's Klatawa, and D. McNeil third in Ris-K.

Warm sun and a stiff breeze combined to make the races good from both spectators' and participants' points of view.

LERWICK, Scotland (CP) — Crofters cutting peat here unearthed a uniform designed for a man seven feet tall, a brimmed cap with human hair attached and a skeleton. Coins nearby were dated 1683. They were thought to be remains of a foreign sailor who got lost in the hills.

Clown Band Big Success

Feature attraction at a mess dance and party held Friday by the 5th Coast Regiment and 75th H.A.A. Regiment was a new clown band led by Sgt. J. Donald.

Individual acts were staged by F. Morris, E. Prentis and F. Benz. They, and other members of the comedy group, are musicians from the regimental band.

Appearance of the group prompted the largest turnout yet for a composite mess party of the two regiments.

The entertaining group will be brought back for a repeat performance at another party in June.

Johnnie Johnson Stars In Track, Field Event

By GAIL O'MEARA
Oak Bay High School

At the annual inter-high school track and field meet held at the new Gyro cinder track at Victoria High School on Wednesday afternoon Oak Bay High School with 50 ½ points placed second to Victoria High's total of 172½ points.

Johnnie Johnson was the stand-out performer for Oak Bay and was runner-up for the senior boys' aggregate cup.

Friday was the last day for nominations for next year's student council president. Kay Burnett, Jim Mitchell, Jim Sharpe and Alm Thackray will contest the important position. Grades XI, X and, for the first time, Grade IX, will vote at the end of this week for the leader of student activities.

DELEGATE

The president of the '51-'52 term will be Oak Bay's delegate to the Junior Red Cross conference at Jasper in July. The school must raise $75 for his or her travel expenses. Each class has been requested to raise $5 and the council will make up the difference. To start things rolling, X-A held a T-dance Monday afternoon and realized more than twice its required quota. The feature attraction of this successful venture was the "Three Notes" trio — Peter Cloghesy, Gary Tucker and Kerry McKenzie.

On Tuesday at recess, the IX-A and IX-B classes sold candy and pop to Oak Bay-ites as their contribution to the drive.

Monday morning, the matric class was honored to welcome Mr. H. O. English, principal of Victoria Normal School, who spoke to the assembled seniors on the merits of teaching as a profession.

Patricia Ann Robertson was Oak Bay High's representative in the May 24 celebrations. Ann was an attendant to May Queen Betty Dolman.

P.S.—Twelve days till graduation.

Colwood, Sooke Tie for Trophy

SOOKE, May 25.—Colwood and Sooke tied for the large school divisional cup and Metchosin won the small school trophy at sports held at Sooke Wednesday.

Other schools participating were Langford, Happy Valley, Jordan River, Muir Creek, Otter Point and Leechtown.

Individual trophies were won by Judy Goldie, Sooke; Gregory Finlay, Colwood; John Aplin, Sooke; John Knape, Langford; [illegible] Beaudin, Colwood; John Hudson, Sooke; Barbara Clapham, Metchosin; Howard Monk, Muir Creek.

School inspector J. E. Brown was in attendance, with trustees Mrs. A. Turner, E. H. Emery and J. Elliott.

Tuna-Fishing Adventure Planned For Lady Royal Off California

MARINE AND TRAVEL NEWS

By RAY WORMALD

Adventure combining profit and fun is just around the corner for the Lady Royal.

Owner Jack Noble, his wife and two friends plan to leave here in the 62-footer about June 10 for tuna grounds off Mexico and California.

With the Nobles will be Geoffrey Wenman, who will be on leave from his post as wharfinger at the city's fishermen's floats, and Jack Gibbs, 773 Island Road.

They plan to reach San Diego by June 18 for refueling and provisioning. Then the group will head for tuna grounds off the southern coast. They will remain in that area as long as the tuna fishing remains good, taking their catches to Mexican ports.

JELLOW TUNA

As the heavy tuna run tapers off in that area, the party will follow the tuna as they move up the Pacific Coast into British Columbia waters.

The Nobles made a similar fishing jaunt last year with considerable success. At present the Lady Royal is operating out of various West Coast fishing ports. She is due here June 2 or 3 to prepare for the long trip.

The story of the Lady Royal has been told and retold so many times, it has almost become a legend. In her early days, this vessel was owned by a mysterious Brother XII.

SOUGHT NEW LIFE

Years ago in England, Brother XII persuaded a number of wealthy persons to come with him to a new and wonderful life which he claimed was to be found on a small island in the Gulf of Georgia, not far from Nanaimo.

He gained a considerable following and the party was established in a small community on the Gulf Island.

Soon after Brother XII completed his great swindle, and with all the money "contributed" to his cause, he left the island in the black of night in a small boat. The larger camp craft—now the Lady Royal—was dynamited at its moorings, and rapidly sank. She was raised some time later, and since then has had several owners.

VARIED CAREER

Forty-one-year-old Cmdr. Dudley G. King, who assumes command of the destroyer Athabaskan in mid-July, has had a varied naval career.

Born at Wilson's Landing, Okanagan Lake, Cmdr. King is currently serving as chief of staff to the Flag Officer Pacific Coast. (This post is to be filled temporarily by Cmdr. R. P. Welland, present commanding officer in Athabaskan.)

Cmdr. King began his naval career in December, 1936, when he joined the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve at Vancouver. Early in 1941 he became executive officer aboard the corvette Arvida, remaining with that ship almost a year. Later he took a specialist course in navigation at H.M.C.S. Kings, Halifax.

For a short while he commanded a Fairmile motor launch before rejoining the Arvida as executive officer in August, 1942.

A month later he was named to command the ship, a post he held for nearly two years, before taking command of the frigate Stettler. In November, 1945, he was named commanding officer of the depot ship H.M.C.S. Provider, operating out of Halifax. While serving aboard that vessel he transferred to the R.C.N.

In July, 1946, Cmdr. King went to the Royal Naval Staff College at Greenwich, England, for a staff course. On completion of the course he went to naval headquarters as deputy director of naval reserves.

After another special course at the National Defence College, Kingston, he assumed his post as chief of staff to the F.O.P.C.

FIRING PRACTICE

Heavy anti-aircraft firing practice will be carried out from Albert Head June 1 between 10 and 11.30 a.m. and between 1.30 and 3.30 p.m., the Department of National Defence warns.

Practice will be onducted seaward in an arc between Race Rocks and Brotchie Ledge, and the danger radius will be 22,000 yards.

* * *

According to Lloyds Register of Shipbuilding Returns, there was 2,000,000 gross tons of shipping under construction in United Kingdom yards at the end of March, and 3,000,000 tons under construction in foreign yards.

British shipyard order books now contain a large reserve of tonnage to follow on, with orders for about 1,500,000 tons being received during the first quarter of this year alone.

Tonnage of work begun in U.K. yards during the first quarter was also greater than any corresponding period since 1946. Two out of every seven now being built are tankers.

* * *

FIRING PRACTICE

Heavy anti-aircraft firing practice will be carried out from Fort Macaulay today and every day up to and including June 1 between 10 a.m. and noon, and between 1.30 and 3.30 p.m. Practice will be conducted seaward in an arc between Race Rocks and Brotchie Ledge, and the danger radius will be 22,000 yards.

MUCH TO LEARN

Some Victorians still have much to learn about the Royal Canadian Navy.

This was proved on Victoria Day. Tied up at an Inner Harbor wharf for the holiday was the minesweeper H.M.C.S. Saulte Ste. Marie. Many Victorians took advantage of the opportunity to see the warship.

But tied up not so far away, at wharves behind the old Transport Department building, were the Federal Fisheries Department patrol vessels Howay and Laurier.

A number of citizens made the mistake of trudging down to the fisheries vessels instead of to the minesweeper. And at the fisheries craft an unidentified man made the most of the situation by waving the visitors into the fish patrol vessels.

"The best ships in the whole navy," he remarked to the unknowing spectators. And into the boats they filed, to look through the gallery, the mess and other facilities.

Both fisheries vessels are painted grey, and each carries a small deck gun forward.

New Types of Window Being Used By Armed Forces in Latest Barracks

By TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, May 26.—The Department of National Defence has authorized the installation of a new and expensive type of window for new and renovated barracks, official sources said tonight, and already a large number of buildings have been thus equipped.

Known as the "double-glaze" or "breather" window, it consists of two panes of glass set in a metal frame with an air space between. The air can escape freely and moisture and frost are prevented from gathering on the outer panes.

Another new type of window is being used in barracks, mainly in air force buildings. This is known as the "double-hung" window and consists of two panes set in an aluminum frame which slides up and down. These windows—also considerably more expensive than the type formerly used—can be opened up to half-way.

An official of Defence Construction Limited, Government Crown corporation, explained that the new windows are similar in principle as the double windows used in store fronts and other business premises. These, however, has air sealed within.

He pointed out these new windows do away with storm sashes and, while they are more expensive to construct, in the long run they will prove more economical.

First, he said, no storm windows will have to be used. Then there is the saving of the labor cost of putting storm windows on and taking them off. The wood frames of storm windows require painting. The double-glaze or double-hung windows, both of which are set in metal frames, do not.

the hypnotic magnetism of the romantic desert flower . . . captured in its full haunting fragrance, packaged to cherish its elegant daintiness. "Desert Flower" is more than lovely . . . it is a subtle, lasting scent. Sample it at the Bay's Toiletries Counter; see the perfume, in an exquisite purse-size vial with leakproof stopper; toilet water in an artistically hand-decorated bottle; rich body sachet; and delicate dusting powder.

For you . . . a small complimentary bottle of Desert Flower Perfume with your purchase of DESERT FLOWER TOILET WATER.
Both for 1.50
